Chinese Answer Russian Attack

TOKYO (UPI)—The Chinese Communist Party central committee today accused the Soviet Union of "jeopardizing" the ideological showdown talks in Moscow, Radio Peking reported.

The Red Chinese also charged anew that the Soviets were trying to poison relations between the two countries.

The attack came on the heels of a renewed proclamation by Communist China of its friendship for Albania, outcast of the Soviet-orientated European Communist bloc.

Monitoring stations in Tokyo reported both Moscow and Peking radios were broadcasting a steady stream of attacks and counter-attacks to the peoples of the two countries in apparent preparation for the break.

The Radio Peking broadcast, monitored in Tokyo today, said the latest Chinese statement was in response to a Soviet Communist Party statement published in the party newspaper Pravda yesterday accusing the Red Chinese of a "deliberate campaign . . . to aggravate seriously the Soviet-Chinese relations . . ."

The Soviet statement referred to a rally held in Peking last Sunday by 7,000 party cadres and government officials to welcome five Chinese who were kicked out of Russia.

Talks Recessed Under a Cloud

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet and Chinese delegations recessed their ideological peace talks Tuesday in the wake of a stinging Soviet rebuke to Red China.

They offered no explanation, but good sources said the suspension was only temporary and that there was no rupture.

The Chinese embassy, acknowledging that no talks were held Tuesday, said they would be resumed today.

ACCUSATION

The Soviet Communist party central committee, in a statement published by Pravda, accused the Chinese of deliberately aggravating Soviet Chinese relations.

It warned that the consequences could be dangerous. The government newspaper Izvestia also published the statement.

REPORTS LEAK OUT

The recess came just as the first reports began trickling out as to what had happened during the opening sessions.

One source said the Chinese had again proposed a world conference of Communist parties to settle the Moscow-Peking dispute, but advocated a new voting procedure which could swing the massive Chinese population into the scales and give China a dominating voice. The Soviet reaction could be surmised as totally negative.

ONE VOTE EACH

In past world conferences each of the 81 Communist parties has had one vote. Special weight was attached to the vote of the Soviet Union as the acknowledged leader of the Red bloc and all decisions came out unanimously for the Soviet Union.

In both party membership and population, Red China outranks the Soviet Union. There are 17,000,000 card-carrying Communists among China's 650,000,000 people; 10,000,000 among the Soviet Union's 220,000,000.

Chinese A-Bomb Delayed

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said Tuesday Communist China has run into technical roadblocks in its nuclear program and that it may be years before it can explode a test bomb.

* * *

The reports said its nuclear effort apparently was damaged seriously by the withdrawal of Soviet scientists, who also took back to Russia important scientific "ingredients."

The west had expected Red China to explode an atomic device sometime this year.

Second Route Talks Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Deschatelets said in the Commons Tuesday that his officials will meet in two or three weeks with officials of the British Columbia highways department to discuss a B.C. proposal for a second Trans-Canada Highway route.

Wholesalers' Windfalls

Tories Hit Gordon On Rebates

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons opposition Tuesday jumped with both feet into the tricky problem of sales tax refunds arising from Finance Minister Gordon's alteration of his June 13 budget.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said wholesalers will have collected "tremendous windfalls" of $350,000 a day since the budget if no provision is made for rebates to consumers. (See also Pages 5 and 7.)

Revenue Minister Garland replied that he does not "for a moment" accept Mr. Diefenbaker's assertion.

UP TO CONSUMER

Under a shower of opposition questions, Mr. Garland and Mr. Gordon said, in effect, that it's up to the consumer to seek price adjustments from suppliers if they have been hit by the budget's 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

Progressive Conservative MPs seized on the situation created by Mr. Gordon's Monday night announcement that the tax, which went into effect June 14, is being reduced retroactively to four per cent, and will be raised in two stages to the full 11-per-cent rate by Jan. 1, 1965.

CAN CLAIM REFUNDS

The tax is levied at the manufacturer's, importer's or wholesaler's level. Mr. Gordon said Monday that where these people have paid the full 11-per-cent rate since the budget they can claim refunds for any tax over four per cent.

A rapid-fire series of Conservative questions hammered at one point: Will there be any refund for purchasers who have bought building materials or production machinery whose price included the 11-per-cent sales tax?

"There is no price control in this country," Mr. Gordon said in reply to one question by

REDS MARCH ON PALACE

* * *

LONDON (CP)—Police battled Communists and their sympathizers in the heart of London Tuesday night, turning back wave after wave of demonstrators trying to march on Buckingham Palace to protest the visit of King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece.

Earlier, there had been unprecedented boos for the British royal family welcoming the Greeks.

King Paul, 62, is a great-grandson of Victoria.

The Greek royal couple dined in splendor inside the palace as guests of Queen Elizabeth, protected from the bloody fighting in nearby streets and squares by the largest peace-time security force London has ever assembled.

JAILED SINCE WAR

Ban-the-bombers and anarchists joined the Communists in the demonstrations demanding "freedom for political prisoners in Greece," meaning Communists who have been in jail since the Greek Civil War.

Police fought the demonstrators in Trafalgar Square, Whitehall and stately Pall Mall from dusk to almost midnight. More than 80 demonstrators were arrested and an uncounted number of police and demonstrators hauled off to hospitals, some of them bleeding.

STREETS CLEARED

By midnight, however, the streets were cleared except for small groups of youngsters standing under the floodlights of Trafalgar Square.

Hundreds of policemen still sat ready in buses on roads leading to the palace, but as the royal guests left, only two demonstrators were outside the palace gates.

RUNNING FIGHTS

Running fights broke out in Trafalgar Square when a group of the Committee of 100, which includes anarchists, tried to march through Admiralty Arch onto The Mall that leads to Buckingham Palace.

Some of the black-sashed, banner-bearing demonstrators broke through the lines of police who were trying to funnel the marchers around the square and off in the direction of Piccadilly.

GATES CLOSED

Wild scenes of struggle among the hooting traffic and jeering spectators continued unchecked for 10 minutes, but police finally managed to check the demonstrators by clanging shut the arch's great iron gates, barring access to the Mall route to the palace.

The demonstrators then swung into Whitehall, the broad street lined by government office buildings, in an attempt to reach the palace through Horse Guards Arch. Mounted police were brought up and, with a half-dozen cordons thrown across Whitehall, threw the

Friendship Pledged By Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth told King Paul and Queen Frederika at a sumptuous state banquet Tuesday night that the friendship between Britain and Greece "forged in peace and sharpened in war" could "survive temporary disagreements and be enduring."

The Greek royal couple were the guests of honor at the banquet in the white and gold state ballroom of Buckingham Palace on the first evening of their state visit to Britain.

Public 'Sick Tired'

LONDON (Reuters)—Home Secretary Henry Brooke declared Tuesday night the British public is "sick and tired of the antics of Communists, the Committee of 100 and other extremists."

Brooke spoke as the Commons gave an unopposed second reading to a bill to increase penalties for offences against the public order.

Four Died Last Fall

Ground Party Finds Shattered Aircraft

EDMONTON (CP)—A small aircraft that disappeared in the remote and rugged Nahanni Valley, 650 miles northwest of here, last September has been found. None of its four occupants survived.

Pilot of the Cessna 185 missing since Sept. 29 was Kenneth Stockall, 32, of Yellowknife. He was on a picture-taking flight in the mountainous area with passengers Henry H. Busse, 66, a Yellowknife photographer, Gunther Goertz and Victor Hudon, both former Saskatoon residents.

The plane disappeared after leaving Fort Simpson, N.W.T., on a proposed three-hour flight over the valley and back to Yellowknife. The weather was foggy at the time.

The wreckage was found by a crew of topographical surveyors, 145 miles west of Fort Simpson, N.W.T., and 45 miles from Cli Lake.

The initial RCMP report from the scene said there were no survivors. The department of transport sent two accident investigators into the area which can be reached only by helicopter.

Communications to Fort Smith, N.W.T. where police were co-ordinating details of the find were disrupted by noise Tuesday and additional details were not immediately available.

COULDN'T FIND PLANE

No trace of the float-equipped aircraft or its passengers was found in a 67-day search last fall and winter during which the RCAF and civilian aircraft flew more than 1,600 hours and covered 60,000 square miles.

The search was resumed briefly June 20, when an RCAF Albatross made a 15-hour reconnaissance of the valley, about 650 miles northwest of Edmonton, in the hope of sighting something which was not visible last winter.

CALLED OFF

The search was officially called off June 23.

Mr. Busse, internationally known for his photographic work in northern Canada, began taking pictures when he was 50. He was working as a pipefitter's helper at Port Radium, N.W.T., about 850 miles north of Edmonton when his employers bought some of his first pictures to use as wall murals.

He later moved to Yellowknife to take up commercial photography on the advice of a visiting Roman Catholic priest who frequently used Busse's Port Radium darkroom as a confessional.

UN to Investigate Poison Gas Claim

LONDON (AP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant has ordered an inquiry into claims that Egyptian bombers dropped poison gas on royalist tribesmen in Yemen's civil war.

Britain and the United States are reported launching independent investigations.

Thirty-five Canadian airmen have arrived in Yemen as part of a UN observation team.

Hungary: Troops To Go?

LONDON — Speculation is growing that the Soviet Union may soon withdraw its troops from Hungary.

The speculation is tied to three recent developments. The first was UN Secretary-General Thant's three-day official visit to Budapest last week in accordance with a UN decision that he should personally investigate conditions there.

Before leaving, the secretary-general said his talks with Premier Janos Kadar had been highly satisfactory.

* * *

On July 3 Soviet Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky arrived in Hungary. Budapest radio announced he would spend part of his annual holidays there.

Then, over the weekend, it was announced that Kadar would visit Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow later this summer.

Observers believe all these visits may indicate that Kadar and Khrushchev now feel the time has come to withdraw the Soviet troops, which helped put down the Hungarian rebellion in 1956.

Probes Mushroom Over Sex, Spies

LONDON (Reuters)—More investigations appear imminent into the prostitution, spy and homosexual scandals battering Britain's Conservative government.

Prime Minister Macmillan told the House of Commons Tuesday some charges about a "homosexual network of corruption" in the government made by neo-Nazi leader Colin Jordan were passed on to Lord Denning, the judge investigating the security aspects of the Profumo case. (See Page 3.)

Labor Opposition Leader Harold Wilson asked Macmillan to see him in the next two days to discuss some form of inquiry into the case of former diplomat Harold Philby, who fled to the Communist bloc after admitting being a Russian spy before 1946.

GOT DATA IN PRISON

National Socialist Chief Jordan said in a letter to the prime minister he obtained his information while in prison with John Vassall, a self-confessed homosexual jailed for spying for Russia.

Jordan said this information gave a shocking picture of "a still-operative homosexual network of corruption, involving members of Parliament, high civil servants and even intelligence officers themselves, which manifestly jeopardizes our national security."

To Keep Housekeeper — Target of Accusations

Bishop Defies Vatican

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishop of Aberdeen, Magr. Francis Walsh, said Tuesday he will ignore a Vatican order to dismiss his housekeeper, divorced wife of a Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) minister.

* * *

The bishop, 62, said he had been given until today to get rid of Mrs. Ruby MacKenzie, 42.

Bishop Walsh appealed to the Vatican against what he considered the injustice of the order. He has had no reply.

The bishop did not disclose what department of the Vatican issued the order. In Rome it was reported that it could have come from any one of several Vatican offices and that the Vatican does not normally comment on such matters, considering them strictly private within the church.

In a letter to his diocesan clergy, which he has ordered read without comment at the principal masses Sunday, the bishop blames a jealous woman and five priests.

* * *

"The priests' meeting place is known to me," the bishop said. "It would seem that I am not sufficiently conservative. I am attacked through my housekeeper — filthy accusations in letters from the woman, then anonymous letters and persecution on the telephone with threats to get her, the housekeeper, out.

"Rumors and criticism spread through a certain circle and affected some of the teaching profession. In these ways my housekeeper was reduced to a state of terror, in which she is afraid to be left alone in the house."

* * *

The bishop said he had spent three months praying and pondering about the order to turn Mrs. MacKenzie out of his house.

Klan Covers All U.S. With White Campaign

ATLANTA (AP) — Ku Klux Klan leaders said Tuesday the white-robed and hooded order is launching a large-scale campaign of white resistance to racial integration throughout the South and in other parts of the United States.

The new Klan move will be one of non-violence but self-protection, the leaders added.

They said their methods will include marching demonstrations, mass rallies, economic reprisals and white voter-registration drives. In recent months the Klan has been generally inactive.

SHOCK TREATMENT

"The thing we've got to do is shock people into reality," said Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton Jr. of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Georgia's Grand Dragon, Calvin F. Craig of Atlanta, made a more ominous assessment of the racial conflict:

OPEN WAR

"The Negroes are not going to be satisfied until we have open racial war in this country. . . . One race will have to dominate."

Shelton and Craig belong to the United Klans of America, Inc., knights of the Ku Klux Klan. They say their order is the only authentic Klan.

Craig, 35, said the Klan would stage a street march July 20 in Savannah, Ga., where Negroes have been conducting demonstrations against segregation.

"I certainly hope no Negroes throw rocks," Craig said.

"I don't necessarily mean we'll take a violent stand but if the state can't protect citizens, we'll band together to protect ourselves."

Craig said he would not encourage violence, "but I'm going to encourage self-protection."

crowds back amid jeering and cat-calling. More fights broke out.

PRISONER'S WIFE

Among the marchers were Mrs. Betty Ambatielos, British-born wife of a Greek imprisoned in his homeland, and Mrs. Diana Pym, secretary of the Communist-front League of Democracy for Greece. Like many in the crowd, they wore black sashes of mourning across their shoulders.

The demonstrators were protesting what they claim is the Greek government's continued imprisonment of 900 political prisoners from the Communist civil war in Greece. The Greek government contends those still behind bars were convicted of criminal offences such as murder and treason.

Just after 7:30 p.m., an hour before the banquet began, 91-year-old Lord Russell—who became famous as philosopher Bertrand Russell — arrived at the palace to deliver a protest about the royal visit.

Crowds spotted his car and a few raised a cheer. He was in the palace less than a minute before driving away again.

TO GREEK QUEEN

His letter, addressed to Queen Frederika, claimed that political prisoners were being detained in miserable conditions in Greece. He urged the Queen "to commend to their Greek majesties the liberation of political prisoners and the holding of honest elections."

Demonstrators were handled roughly as police grabbed them and bundled them into a fleet of waiting prisoners' trucks.

BURST OF BOOING

There was a burst of booing from the crowd as six mounted police charged a crowd of banner-waving demonstrators, sending them flying.

A passing lawyer reported he photographed a three-foot-wide pool of blood on the pavement.

Gordon Lambasted

Douglas Harkness (PC — Calgary North).

A purchaser's best course, he added, "is to appeal to the retailer in question."

If a customer paid too high a price, "I have no doubt he and the retailer will get together and work it out."

TO RECOVER TAX

Mr. Harkness suggested it was the responsibility of the government, "which made the error to begin with," to give people the right to recover the tax.

Mr. Garland offered a further explanation to a similar question by Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South).

The revenue minister said refunds will be made to manufacturers, importers and others who have paid more than the four-per-cent sales tax rate since the budget.

"It will, of course, be expected that they will pass on these benefits to those to whom they sold goods during this period. . . . The extent to which this will happen will depend to a considerable degree on the legal and even the good will relations between the vendor and the purchaser."

Mr. Hales asked whether this means an individual who purchased a can of paint since June 13 can ask the retailer for a refund of the sales tax in excess of four per cent.

ONLY DEALER

Mr. Garland replied that only the dealer would know whether the retailer paid the 11-per-cent rate on the can of paint.

He said Mr. Hales should appreciate the difficulties in the government "getting involved in a relationship between the vendor and the purchaser."

Finally, amid shouts of protest from Liberal MPs, Mr. Diefenbaker got into the argument.

$350,000 A DAY

He said a rough computation shows wholesalers will have collected about $350,000 a day—the difference between the four-per-cent and 11-per-cent tax rates.

Unless there was some arrangement to have the wholesalers make refunds, "it is going to be a tremendous windfall to the wholesalers in this country."

Mr. Garland said there was "no justification" for Mr. Diefenbaker's position.

The issue was not resolved during the day's question period, and it appeared certain the opposition will return to the point when the Commons debates the tax resolution.

APPLY TO CHURCHES

Gilles Gregoire (SC—Lapointe) asked whether the exemption from the sales tax announced for schools and universities would also apply to churches, monasteries and clergymen's homes.

Mr. Gordon replied that any further clarification of his budget measures should await debate on the tax resolutions "which as far as I am concerned cannot come too soon."

Your Good Health

Patient's Ears Ring —Noises Won't Hurt

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have high blood pressure. Is there any cure? Or will I have to take pills the rest of my life?

I also have ringing noises in my ears.—Mrs. C. K.

High blood pressure is one of several causes of ear noises. The noises won't hurt you, annoying as they are, but high blood pressure decidedly can.

Weight is one cause of high blood pressure.

Sometimes kidney defects are at fault, and surgery brings down the pressure.

MEDICATION NEEDED

Sometimes none of these factors is responsible, and it is impossible to establish a specific cause—yet the pressure remains high. In such cases medication may be necessary for an extended period of time. Occasionally, medication can be stopped and the pressure remains normal.

If—and I'm just iffing—your doctor has told you to lose weight, then do so.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I bruise easily, even from a slight bump. Do you think I might be lacking something in my diet? —Mrs. R. E.

A common reason is lack of adequate calcium. (Milk is the best source of it; green leafy vegetables are another.) Vitamin C deficiency and a decrease in blood platelets are other causes. A complete blood study is in order.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Our 13-year-old daughter has diabetes very bad. It has been said that she has it because she never ate right and had too many sweets. Is this so?—Mrs. G.

No. With a child diabetes often appears at the age just before puberty, but not because of diet. (In later life, diabetes more often attacks people who are or have been overweight, but that is a long-term consideration, and sweets or sugar are not the cause, except as they contribute to overweight.)

Heredity seems to be the strongest single factor in diabetes.

Ignore any wild talk that your daughter "didn't eat properly." It has no bearing. Second, why don't both you and your husband have thorough tests for diabetes?

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: If a woman becomes pregnant while she or her husband is intoxicated, will the baby be retarded? —Mrs. K. P.

No.

Secrets Plug Sought

LONDON (UPI) — Britain Tuesday announced an increased campaign of co-operation with the U.S. to halt the flow of secrets to Russia.

No details were given, but the foreign office added a denial of rumors mentioned by The Daily Telegraph and the U.S. magazine Newsweek that a new spy case of "megaton proportions" is brewing. This scandal is said to involve leaks about the Skybolt missile and other military information.

Peter's Dead

Mandy Spikes Rumors

LONDON (AP) — Call-girl Mandy Rice-Davies said Tuesday rumors that a shadowy figure in the Profumo scandal faked death and is still alive are false.

Peter Rachman, benefactor of Mandy and Christine Keeler, was reported to have died last fall shortly before the Keeler-Profumo scandal began coming to light. But Ben Parkin, a Labor MP, said Rachman may not be dead.

BASEMENT CLUBS

Rachman, who owned a string of basement clubs and call-girl houses in London's West End, was reported to have died of a coronary thrombosis. But rumors have circulated in Fleet Street that it was Rachman's brother who died.

"Peter Rachman, a man I loved dearly, is indisputably dead, unfortunately," 18-year-old Mandy said.

PRELUDE TO DEATH

"Two days before he died he collapsed in my arms. I was going to Paris the next day. I was prepared to stay but he said he felt all right. Two days later he died."

Rachman's wife Audrey, 28, identified the body. She was not available for comment.

Women to Fight Race Bars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

President Kennedy appealed Tuesday to 300 women—he said they represent 50,000,000 more—to help solve the United States racial problem with a three-point attack.

The women, black and white and representing organizations throughout the U.S., were brought together in the White House East Room in one of a series of meetings the president has been holding to enlist grass-roots support for his civil rights program in Congress.

★ ★ ★

Thelma Stevens, representing the women's division of the Methodist Church, New York City, said Kennedy asked that the women:

1. Go back home and work to get children back in school and stop school dropouts.

2. Align themselves with biracial committees in their own communities and try to clean up discriminatory practices.

3. Support his civil rights legislative program, particularly the portion aimed at wiping out discrimination in places of public accommodation.

"The reaction was very enthusiastic," she reported.

Elsewhere, offers of mediation by federal and county officials prompted suspension of planned Negro demonstrations against segregation in Cambridge, Md., and an amusement park near Baltimore.

In New York City, Mayor Robert Wagner entered city hall through a basement door Tuesday to avoid demonstrators.

Charges of Bias Trouble CNR

MONTREAL (CP) — The CNR said Tuesday night the terms of its collective agreement with the sleeping car porters branch of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport Workers (CLC) has resulted in problems that have led to charges of discrimination against Negroes.

The charges were made Tuesday in Winnipeg by 15 Negro members of the branch.

They asked a federal labor representative to study the matter.

The CNR said in a statement that under its labor contracts there are two separate seniority groups—one involving dining car employees and sleeping car conductors, and the other made up exclusively of porters, who under the terms of their contract cannot bid for sleeping car conductor positions.

In the past the railway and the union had urged members of these two groups to amalgamate. They have refused.

No Negroes After Dark In U.S. Town

OLYMPIA (AP) — A Washington state civil rights board has found the city of Kennewick has virtually barred its gates to Negroes and gained a reputation as a "sundown town" where Negroes must leave after dark.

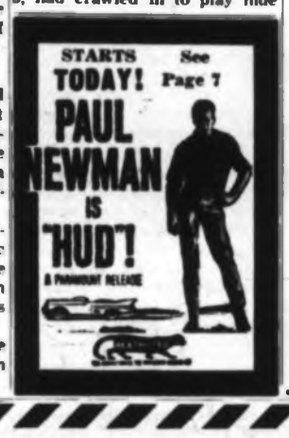

The indictment was made today in a hard-hitting report by the five-member State Board against Discrimination. It was based on a 10-day investigation last May of alleged segregation practices in the Eastern Washington city of 14,244.

RACIAL GHETTO

The board said undisputed findings showed there is not a single Negro living in Kennewick while 1,200 of them are bottled up in what it called "a district racial ghetto" in nearby East Pasco.

No Negroes were found enrolled in the Kennewick public schools nor employed in the school district, city, Benton County, state or federal offices in Kennewick.

"About six" Negroes were working for private firms in the city.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Finance Minister Gordon's Compromise, Announced Monday, Is Not The Answer.

PLEASE!—I WANT MY INCOME TAX INCREASED!

The 11% Federal Sales Tax, in its previous form, is already the WORST KIND OF TAX, as it gouges industry at its creative source, reflecting on the markups of distributors, wholesalers and retailers . . . and in the end, the consumer pays AS HIGH AS 22% MORE, plus a higher provincial sales tax on the thus increased retail price.

OBVIOUSLY, the PYRAMIDING OF THIS TAX HAS A DEVASTATING EFFECT on the price we pay for goods.

But the Liberal Government's enlarging it at this time to apply against building materials and logging equipment, among other things, threatens the entire economy of the nation, for the PRIMING OF THE BUILDING INDUSTRY by the government in the past few years has been an important factor IN KEEPING US OUT OF A DEPRESSION (and, let's face it, the unemployment picture has not been healthy in any case).

I believe in supporting the policy of GOVERNMENT POWER OF REDISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH by higher taxation. But let's do this by increasing the income tax, which FAIRLY TAXES us after we've MADE THE MONEY not by throttling a man's chance to make a living.

If the government doesn't want to increase the Income Tax, what about the CAPITAL-GAINS-TAX that has been procrastinated about for years by all Parties? Millions of dollars are being made by already-wealthy-people, on the TAX-FREE, CAPITAL-GAINS "GIMMICK."

That is their good fortune—I don't mind making or saving a dollar myself.

But the rising cost of government should be borne by those WHO CAN AFFORD IT, including me. The so-called "small man" cannot stand any more. He has had enough of rising prices and unemployment.

In my limited sphere, I have personal knowledge of nervous breakdowns (and one eventual death) of more than half-dozen steadily-employed fathers, or their wives, due to financial pressure. These are young people, ages 30 to 40, raising children—the backbone of our democratic society.

What frustrations and despair then, for those occasionally unemployed and the totally unemployed!

I risk the call of "crank" to publish my opinions for fear that not enough of us will continue to ACT, having been LULLED BY COMPROMISE. The momentum of positive reaction, such as deluged the government to force the compromise, must be maintained. Let Prime Minister Pearson know that we don't want compromise. We want a COMPLETE RESCINDMENT OF THE ENLARGEMENT OF THE SALES TAX.

It's going to be a tough job! The Minister of Finance has deferred one issue, and compromised this one, and these two admissions of blundering may in themselves be enough to lose the Liberals the next election.

For the sake of your country's economy and mental health—those of you who have complained, COMPLAIN AGAIN ABOUT THE COMPROMISE—those who haven't "got around to it" before, please let your voice be heard where it will do the most good—OTTAWA!

A Sorry Mess

MR. PEARSON is said to have influenced Mr. Gordon from resigning when it became clear that his finance minister's budget was not acceptable, or even practical, in its original form.

The prime minister probably had little option. It is hard to conceive that any other member of his cabinet would have been anxious to take on the task of clearing up the Gordon wreckage.

So he persuaded Mr. Gordon to do what he could to plug some of the holes in the leaking ship, and with a little patching here, and caulking there, remove the more obnoxious and impracticable features to the degree they could be accepted not only in parliament —where there is no desire to have the government upset at the present moment—but by the indignant public at large.

As a ship repairer, Mr. Gordon looks no better than he has been as a shipbuilder. Perhaps even worse.

He first made the inexcusable blunder of withdrawing his 30 per cent stock tax while the stock markets were still in session; he then misled the House when he said only members of the cabinet knew in advance of the withdrawal; and finally in the House this week he had to amend two more important budget proposals.

In a face-saving explanation, Mr. Gordon said that the changes he was making "do not alter the objectives of the budget."

Very few will agree.

Mr. Gordon has slashed the immediate sales tax on building materials and machinery from 11 per cent to 4 per cent, but intends to place these items on the 11 per cent basis by gradual stages. He is also reducing the withholding tax on dividend payments by companies more than 75 per cent foreign owned from 15 per cent to 10 per cent.

So far as the building and machinery tax is concerned, Mr. Gordon's delaying tactics merely serve to make it almost impossible for industry to establish long-term contracts on a firm price basis.

It will mean new and unproductive bureaucratic jobs both on the government and industrial levels to keep the books and sort out inevitable confusion over the next few years.

As a result of these forced changes the extra income expected by Mr. Gordon in the current year will drop to a mere $40,000,000 and will manage to unbalance the budget which the minister hoped would start to put Canada again in the black.

The Opposition reception to Mr. Gordon's backtracking was heavily loaded with sarcasm, and there can be little doubt now in Mr. Pearson's mind that his right-hand man, the brilliant economist Mr. Gordon, has let him down.

But Mr. Pearson cannot put the sole blame on Mr. Gordon, for the budget in the end is the responsibility of the government and not of one man only.

Nor can Mr. Gordon say that it was his leader's insistence on a budget in 60 days that caused him to make so many errors of judgment, for those who have read Mr. Gordon's book "Troubled Canada," published in 1961, will see that many of the minister's fanciful schemes are expounded in that production.

It would be difficult to believe that in modern times there has ever been a national budget quite like this one. In any normal political situation not only the finance minister but the government would have been forced to resign.

Serious Matter

ATTORNEY-GENERAL BONNER appears complacent about the alleged covering up of theft of ferry tolls at Nanaimo. One would think he would be the last to write the affair off lightly.

The claims that have been made are that highways department patrolmen carried out an investigation, that the police were never called in, and that an unnamed culprit was found and admitted his guilt in return for a promise that he would not be prosecuted.

Mr. Bonner says it is usual for Crown corporations to do their own internal policing. And so it may be. But that does not make it right if for the sake of keeping their dirty washing to themselves, government corporations or departments resort to such procedure as is said to have been followed in this instance.

It is almost beyond belief in the first place that if ferry fares were being abstracted the RCMP could not have made a better job of the investigation that the highways department employees are purported to have done: could not have caught the thief red-handed.

But perhaps of more concern, what right or power does a government agency or department have to forgive, to all intents and purposes, the taking of public money, and thus to become an accessory in the offence?

If such power exists, and if quiet separation from the government service may be the only penalty for wrong-doing of this nature, the temptation will be so much the greater wherever the opportunity presents itself. If departments have no such power, Mr. Bonner should hardly be viewing the toll authority's actions as natural and normal. Either way, he has cause for concern, and even if he does not see it this way he may be sure that the best part of the public does.

Go-Ahead Spirit

MR. DENNIS YOUNG, who will take over in September as city manager when the present incumbent, Mr. Wyatt, retires, finds after his three years' absence from the city much evidence of a go-ahead spirit in local endeavor. The tempo of things has spurted since the former city comptroller left for an appointment in Hamilton, Ontario.

Mr. Young could hardly fail to notice the changes that have and are still taking place. Private and civic enterprise is creating a new atmosphere here, a more lively activity in various directions, and proof that the capital city is fast becoming more attractive every day.

Removal of the downtown overhead wiring, the new university campus and the enticing prospects of the institution itself, the sound civic planning involved in the creation of Centennial Square, the erection of office and apartment buildings that bespeak confidence in the economic future of the town, the new store fronts and the use of paint to brighten the decor —all these and more indicate fresh vitality and interest all round.

It will be Mr. Young's task as city manager to help keep the increase in tempo alive and flourishing, and one feels sure he will bring to his responsibilities the spirit of enthusiasm that is presently to be marked as Victoria answers the challenge of modern development.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax . . ."

By TOM TAYLOR

I SEE that Frank Sinatra Junior has explained why he is following in his father's footsteps and taking up a career in the entertainment world. He grew up under a piano, as it were, and has been so conditioned by singing—if that is the correct term for current voice exploitation in this realm—that it is now part of his skin.

All men of course grow up in the environment created by the profession of their parents and in some families it becomes a tradition to follow suit. Not perhaps to the extent that once it did, and the days are over when artisans for instance simply entered a trade because their fathers and grandfathers had spent a lifetime at it.

Even in the professional ranks there are many instances where the sons choose other roads to fame and fortune. Perhaps in these cases the parental job got too much under the skin of the son, compelling him to another vocation altogether.

If a father takes his work home with him at nights, for example, and develops too many creases of worry, the son may well conclude this is one type of vocation he should eschew.

There is too the pecuniary aspect which may set environment totally at naught, when the father does not seem to have become too affluent by his efforts and his offspring concludes he had better choose a different line of endeavor.

One advantage deriving from a change of career is that the son does not rival his father and his own path in life is not prejudiced by comparison. He can pursue his course without a parental shadow looming over his own fate.

* * *

In the case of the young Sinatra he may never hit the heights of Frank Senior but his world, the entertainment scene, is one where apparently it is no drawback to have a famous father. One can gather from the video and film names that having a well-known father, or mother for that matter, helps to open the door to the first tentative foot the offspring puts into it. A name is often an open sesame, and not alone in the entertainment world, which is one more reason why children should choose their parents well. If only they could.

Naturally environment will always play an important part in shaping the future of young people. Willy-nilly they absorb much of the lexicon of their fathers, politics is a good example, and they come to a profession therefore with something of it in their blood. They thus have a head start on someone starting entirely from scratch. They have listened to the ups and downs that trouble all parents, and few of these there are who do not betray their cares in the bosom of their families. This sometimes makes young people avoid the parental profession, as we have noted, but on the other hand if they do decide to follow in father's footsteps they are not strangers to the milieu they afterwards enter.

Having been under the piano, a la Mr. Sinatra Jr., it has entered their skin.

Yet sons of the famous would seem to have a better chance if they don't try to emulate their male parent. The offspring of a Churchill, a Montgomery, or a Thomas Edison, for example have hard rows to hoe if they hope to eclipse or even equal their illustrious sires, and history doesn't afford many instances where they succeeded.

There are many more non-famous people than famous ones, however, so this handicap does not loom much in the generality of cases. There are also many more vocational avenues open to the sons of fathers nowadays, which is opportunity enough for them to strike out in fresh directions, uninhibited by the atmosphere in which they grew up.

South Africa

Migration in Both Directions

By STANLEY UYS from Cape Town

IN TWO months' time, 500 British immigrants will sail from Liverpool in the Empress of England to begin a new life in South Africa. It will be the biggest single batch of immigrants in the 15 years of Nationalist government rule. With a £60-a-head grant from the South African government, and aided by block-bookings, they are paying some £10 each for the 6,000-mile passage.

Many of them, probably, made up their minds to emigrate during last winter's "freeze" in Britain. South Africa House in London reported at the time that it was receiving a "fantastic" number of inquiries from prospective settlers. They wanted to escape from Britain's climate. They wanted sun and space. They wanted an outdoor life and better prospects for their children.

One man, for 39 years a British government employee in the mechanical engineering field, said: "We'll take South Africa as it comes. Our daughter told us what a wonderful country this is, and so we decided to come and see for ourselves." Another said: "There is much more opportunity here for my children, and obviously I would not have brought them if I thought their lives were in danger." A commercial artist, who came with his wife and four children, spoke of Britain's color problem. Another couple with two children, said: "We have come to South Africa for the climate and better living conditions. In Britain, all incentive to work is killed by the high taxation."

* * *

Britain today is providing South Africa with one-quarter of its immigrants, and it looks as if this proportion might rise. If the present trend continues, then Britain will again become a big supplier of settlers as it was when General Smuts' government went out of power in 1948.

Last year was South Africa's best year for immigrants since 1948: no fewer than 20,916 arrivals, compared with 8,945 departures, leaving a net gain of 11,971 settlers. In 1961, the net gain was only 1,415.

During January and February of this year, South Africa's net gain from immigrants was 10 times greater than it was in January-February, 1962.

The "freeze" in Britain, coupled with living conditions generally, and the exodus of whites from the Central African Federation and Kenya, are two important factors behind this dramatic increase.

In 1948, the last year of the Smuts government, 36,634 immigrants arrived. One of the first acts of the Nationalist government was to abolish the state-aided immigration scheme. Nationalist leaders declared that General Smuts was bringing in immigrants to "plow under the Afrikaner vote."

Apparently, the Nationalists feel that this danger has receded, because they have their own state scheme now. In any case, some British immigrants arrive loudly professing their support for the Nationalist government's apartheid policies.

They say Britain's own color problem has given them an insight into South Africa's color problem—but that the Nationalist government is tackling the problem in the right way.

* * *

It is doubtful, though, whether politics is an important factor in immigration from Great Britain. Certainly there appear few liberals among the new British settlers, but the main preoccupation of almost every new arrival is clearly with climate and conditions of living.

There have been complaints, though, that South Africa House, London, painted too rosy a picture of life here—that cheap, unfurnished houses are difficult to find (flats are more plentiful), that jobs are not always easily obtained, that it was not impressed forcibly on them that bilingualism was required in the government service, and that in certain ways life is more expensive in South Africa.

There is another group arriving in South Africa: settlers from Rhodesia and Kenya. Many of the Rhodesian settlers are South Africans returning to their home country. Of the 20,916 immigrants who came to South Africa in 1962, more than one-third (7,257) came from the Rhodesian Federation, 1,707 from Kenya, 275 from Tanganyika and 69 from the Congo.

Thus, of the 20,916 immigrants, 10,143 came from overseas countries (Britain 4,968, West Germany 1,314, etc.) and 10,773 from the African continent. There is a definite political reason for the white immigration from the African countries it is the growing belief that South Africa is the only really safe bastion of white rule on the black continent.

Many government spokesmen have said that whites in Africa, if they are forced to quit, must regard South Africa as their haven, and that white South Africans will rather die than surrender white rule.

In contrast to the mounting immigration flow, reflecting as it does faith in South Africa's ability to hold out as a white-ruled country, are the warnings of white liberals and others that the political situation, already grim, is going to deteriorate rapidly and that the race problem now can be resolved only by violence.

While immigrants are arriving full of hope and confidence, South Africa is still losing some of its most talented people, although not in the numbers in which they emigrated in 1961.

One such emigrant is Dr. Max Marwick, Professor of Social Anthropology at the University of the Witwatersrand (Johannesburg), who said he is quitting South Africa because he would be "banging my head against a granite wall" if he stayed on in the hope of helping to change the situation. He is taking up a university post in Australia.

"I am an academic," he said, "not a politician, and the intellectual atmosphere in South Africa is steadily dying in the face of futile arguments over issues that science and the rest of the world have already settled."

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

WHILE shaving this morning, staring willy-nilly at my too familiar physiognomy, I suddenly became outraged at the nuisance to which I have been subjected all my life—having to lather up, prepare a razor, and stand, rigid and cautious, for several minutes before a mirror. How many times, I demanded of my reflection, does a man go through this ritual?

So I got a pencil and paper, when I was dry, and figured it out. I started to shave, as nearly as I can recollect, at the age of 17, partly, of course, out of pride rather than of real necessity. Being now close to 71, that makes 54 years of shaving, which, at 365 days of the year, amounts to the ridiculous total of 19,710 shaves!

In one life! I will knock off 710, or roughly two years of shaves, in consideration of the fishing and camping trips I have been on, when I might have skipped a day or two; or in the wars, when, in the front line, you did not have to be immaculate. Sundays, sometimes, I stayed in bed. But that still leaves 19,000 shaves. And with all due respect to propriety, that seems a lot.

Tasty as a Doormat

WHY is it that when we enter a restaurant and order a fruit salad all we can get is something out of a can; a mass of pallid grapes, pear, peach and a few unrecognizable scraps, all stewed together until the result is about as tasty as a boiled doormat?

We have travelled Canada extensively. In Winnipeg, 1,000 miles from any fruit-growing area, we can get a delicious fruit salad made with fresh B.C. apples and Ontario strawberries and other fruits, according to the season.

But not in Victoria. Or if it is obtainable here, we have yet to find the place.

Nothing is tastier than a fresh fruit salad on a hot day, and nothing could more readily offer samples of B.C. fruits to the jaded traveller. Why serve him the boiled left-overs of California, Florida and Hawaii?

Fine Collection

As "Lover of Trees" writes, the trees along Douglas Street, especially between Fort and Yates Streets, are an obstruction to pedestrians and have little esthetic value. However, Victorians appreciate this civic project and at the base of most of them is a fine collection of matches, cigarette butts, candy wrappers and other trash.

In Pioneer Square a garbage can is chained to one of the most prominent and beautiful trees. The utilitarian value of the Douglas Street trees might be utilized by chaining a garbage can to the base of each tree.

Canada's Flag

"A Canadian" complains that the Union Jack is flown instead of the Canadian Red Ensign; and he is quite right. While the Union Jack is the flag of the British Commonwealth, the Red Ensign is legally and rightly Canada's flag as passed by order in council in 1945, and should be flown on all occasions, with the option of flying the Union Jack as well in recognition of Canada's membership in the Commonwealth. All patriotic organizations who sing "O Canada" should be proud to fly the Canadian flag.

Needed Longer

In my younger days rowing was my hobby. I competed many times at the Royal Canadian Henley at St. Catherines, Ont., and stroked an eight to the intermediate championship of North America.

When I read of our Shawnigan Lake Boys' School eight, arriving only four hours before they had to row at the English Henley I was amazed. Sent on an expensive trip like that they should have had at least four days to get the feel of the water, kinks out, and a course or two to be at their peak for the first race.

How Dare He?

How dare a Canadian call the good old Union Jack a foreign flag? Our forefathers were proud to fight for the good old Union Jack and what is a Canadian but a descendant of Britain, mostly. Who built up Canada to what it is today? Britain of course. What about the CPR—mostly British capital.

In a Dilemma

Nikita Khrushchev says he is against war, but "we are in favor of class struggle." But without the class struggle there would be no capitalism. If he supports this struggle between wage-labor and capital, he supports capitalism which cannot exist without war as a method of expansion through the acquisition of more markets and resources for profits.

He is in a bit of a dilemma.

Stubborn Forces

By MARQUIS CHILDS

ROME has seen so many Caesars, so many triumphal processions, so many conquerors come and go that it cannot be moved by a president of the United States who bears none of the outward trappings of power.

Oddly enough, the Italian visit of President Kennedy more than any other stop showed the uses of power, not to say its misuses. For it was here that the president came up against the stubborn forces of the past that, under the form of democracy prevailing in Italy, apparently cannot be rested in behalf of a stable future. And this is despite the fact that the glitter of prosperity is everywhere evident.

Only the boldest statistician would undertake to say what the cost to America has been in helping to achieve the recovery of a nation ruined by Fascism and war. Liberation was enormously costly in human life. Billions of dollars went from Washington for the recovery effort.

In the elections of 1948 the United States went all out to try to help check the rising tide of Communism. The cost in money was largely concealed but it must have been considerable. A number of Americans threw themselves into this struggle with genuine ardor. The Communist tide was checked.

* * *

In the light of all this the quiet debate within the Kennedy administration over the extent to which the president should go in influencing the course of politics in Italy has a splendid irony. The very word intervention has a sinister sound. Any crude attempt would be sure to backfire, with the Communists seizing on it as evidence of imperialist America seeking to impose its will on the subservient parties of the right.

Much of the counsel the president received was on the side of caution. Yet Kennedy has determined to follow a bolder policy, as he did in Italy. He believes that with events shifting so rapidly it is short-sighted not to recognize that a political opposition exists in each free country and that it is important to come into contact with the leaders of that opposition.

President Antonio Segni, who was unhappy over the president's desire to meet and talk with the leaders of the left, represents the timid inhibitions of the past. In the right wing of the Christian Democratic party he is against a repetition of the "opening to the left" which in the Fanfani coalition government had seemed to offer a hope for stability beyond the rise and fall of fragile combinations dependent on eccentric splinter parties. Segni's nickname, "The Iron Invalid," expresses the stubborn resolve of this frail little man in setting himself against the forces of change.

* * *

Kennedy is no pro-consul visiting the outposts of an empire. No effort of hostile propaganda can cast him in the imperial mold. Yet he understands the uses of power as well as any president in American history and he knows, therefore, that it is not enough to be neutral or to ignore power in being.

In this setting it is tempting to think in classical parallels. At the beginning of the second century after Christ the Roman Empire was being pulled apart at the peripheries. Cracks were showing in the once-mighty facade. At this juncture Rome had the good fortune to find an emperor in Hadrian who was a hard-driving, vigorous administrator determined to end the rot and hold the line against all incursions. Hadrian travelled constantly to the farthest reaches of the empire, using skills beyond the simple force that once prevailed.

With history incredibly compressed by the speed of communication and travel in today's world it may not seem too fantastic to suggest that Kennedy is a kind of Hadrian. If one substitutes alliance for empire, his mission on his recently-concluded punishing exercise has been the same—to try to hold together a structure threatened in so many ways. History will judge whether his skill matches his zeal.

* * *

One reason for the Communist gains in Italy's recent elections was the government corruption reaching down into so many aspects of Italian life. This ancient evil has repeatedly, since the end of the war, given the Communists their opportunity as the gap between the extremes of wealth and poverty has narrowed all too slowly. And, repeatedly, American ambassadors under Democratic and Republican presidents have tried to prod Italian governments to act against these evils and the action has come all too slowly.

To what degree the president may have prevailed against the stubborn forces of the past in his brief frenetic visit can only be a guess. But it was an effort that, given his temperament and the times, he was compelled to make.

B.C. Builders See Minor Boom For '63 Tax Break

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. construction men predicted Tuesday federal budget changes will produce a minor building boom this year.

They said contractors, particularly those building for companies, will rush to complete jobs before the full 11 per cent federal sales tax becomes effective in 1965.

F. H. B. Charlesworth, president of the Heavy Construction Association of B.C., didn't think it will be a panic boom.

"But I think those sitting on the fence may decide to make a rush for it."

GET IT DONE

"It's all very much an improvement," he said. "It will give a great spur to building, to get it done before the full 11 per cent tax goes on."

John Knubley, spokesman for the Vancouver Metropolitan House Builders' Association, said gradual imposition of the tax has been urged by his group.

"It is a better way to do it," he said. "It means a builder, if he is going to be hurt, will only get hurt for four per cent instead of 11 per cent."

CAN'T BE RUSHED

However, B. M. Hoffmeister, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., said he didn't think gradual imposition of the tax will encourage pulp and paper mill projects left in doubt by the tax.

He said projects of this size cannot be rushed through in the 18 months left before full imposition and consequently will bear the full brunt of the tax.

MLA Pay Boosted In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Lesage introduced legislation Tuesday increasing the indemnities of assembly members to $10,000 from $8,700 and their tax-free expense allowance to $5,000 from $3,200 per session.

The legislation also puts an age limit of 75 on members of the province's upper house.

Elizabeth Taylor Fairy Godmother

LONDON (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor was named Tuesday as the fairy godmother of a 13-year-old British girl whose parents couldn't afford to pay for her ballet training.

The girl is Anita Desmarais. She was one of a dozen British children who danced at Covent Garden Monday night with the Soviet Bolshoi company in the ballet Cinderella.

The film star for two years paid anonymously for Anita's schooling at the Royal Ballet school, said Richard Henley, Miss Taylor's secretary. He said she heard about the child from Margot Fonteyn, Britain's leading ballerina.

The story leaked out and Anita's mother, Mrs. Barbara Desmarais, called at Miss Taylor's hotel suite to thank her. The star loaned her a black velvet, lynx-lined coat to wear to the ballet.

★ ★ ★

"Miss Taylor insisted I borrow it," said blonde Mrs. Desmarais. "She offered me a choice of three gorgeous coats. I was so touched . . .

"She told me that as a child she very much wanted to be a ballet dancer, but she overtrained and something went wrong with her ankles."

Deviates Thugs Must Go

VANCOUVER (CP) — Park commissioners, hearing a report that hooligans and sex deviates are threatening to take over Vancouver parks, have asked for immediate police action. Marshall Smith, recreation supervisor, reported the situation to the park board Monday night. He is to meet Police Chief Ralph Booth later in the week.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Smith began an investigation after Patricia Kanopsky, 11, was dragged from a swing and thrown into a pool by two boys.

Said board chairman E. W. Bowering:

"You can't call these people kids—they're sadists."

During the weekend a 13-year-old girl had a tooth broken by a youth who smashed her face into a drinking faucet; two 11-year-old girls were forced to turn over their wallets to three youths; two other girls were accosted by a man.

★ ★ ★

All incidents took place in daylight.

Police have charged 14 men with gross indecency in city parks within the last eight days.

Commissioner Everett Crowley said:

"Some parks don't even have any attendance because of these goon squads."

Changes Made

Age, Says Rayner

Ships, Subs Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner, chief of naval staff, said Tuesday 23 aging warships will have to be replaced by 1970, partly by submarines, if Canada is to maintain its present naval commitment to NATO.

He told the Commons defence committee that the navy needs submarines "as quickly as we can get them" and "great numbers" of cheap anti-submarine surface vessels.

He said the three Halifax-based submarines on loan from the British Navy will have to be replaced by 1966 or 1967.

ANTI-SUB FORCE

The RCN's anti-submarine force should comprise 24 surface ships, eight submarines and eight general purpose frigates with anti-submarine and anti-air (missile and aircraft) capability.

The gentle-voiced naval chief also said there are plans for fixed anti-submarine installations in the Canadian Arctic. This was a reference to underwater and underice submarine detection barriers on which, he said, research is continuing.

ALARM SYSTEM

Last year the RCN and RCAF Maritime Air Command began installation of an automatic submarine alarm system under the western Atlantic. The system comprises moored sono-buoys which can detect submarines and relay the information to patrol planes overhead.

Admiral Rayner noted that the former Conservative government on April 11, 1962, announced that three conventional Oberon class submarines would be purchased from Britain at about $11,000,000 each if Britain bought defence equipment of approximately equal value from Canada. The Liberal government has not yet reaffirmed this purchase.

Admiral Rayner said a submarine built in Canada would cost a "great deal more" than the Oberon and that the British submarines are in production and therefore quickly available.

He did not dwell at length on the eight-ship, $374,000,000 frigate program which Defence Minister Hellyer has indicated he may be forced to cancel before contracts are let.

GIVE VERSATILITY

But he said these ships would give the fleet the versatility which 11 aging tribal class destroyers have provided in the past.

They would have an anti-submarine capability and give the RCN, for the first time, surface-to-air guided missiles systems for anti-air defence.

He said the 50-knot hydrofoil boat might be the answer.

Pearson 'Defies' Quebec

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Pearson served notice Tuesday his government intends to proceed with legislation to establish a municipal development fund and a contributory pension plan despite objections by Quebec.

However, he told the Commons, Quebec and other provinces would have a chance to make representations on such measures at a federal-provincial conference to be convened "soon."

Mr. Pearson also said he plans to address the UN assembly in September and might visit Australia later in the year.

Food, Jobs

'Baby Budget' A Double Blow

Increased unemployment and rising food costs were predicted in Victoria Tuesday following Finance Minister Gordon's "baby budget."

Labor Council secretary Ald. A. W. Toone said building costs will rise at least until 1965 due to administrative costs caused by the four per cent building tax. He felt this would reduce capital speding, and therefore jobs.

Esquimalt - Saanich MLA George Chatterton charged the cost of food will rise eventually because of the government's failure to rescind the tax on farm building construction.

But pleased reactions came from Victoria University development board which stands to save $40,000 to $70,000 in taxes and the school board of Greater Victoria which had feared a rise of five per cent in school construction costs.

B.C. Mystery Death Stumps Mounties

MASSET (CP) — Police at this Queen Charlotte Islands centre have turned the tangled case of Mrs. Blanche Brown over to area headquarters of the RCMP in Prince Rupert.

Mrs. Brown, 28, a resident of the Haida Indian settlement near here, was found dead on the road to Masset June 30. The car which hit her was standing abandoned at the scene.

RCMP at Masset said they had interviewed several witnesses, but were unable to learn the driver's identity. Most of the witnesses were related.

"All we know is that Mrs. Brown was at a party . . . and stepped outside with her husband and another man. They were standing talking on the highway when someone else from the party went out, got into a car and started to drive away.

Nine Die, 40 Hurt

LEONBERG, West Germany (Reuters) — At least nine persons -- seven of them British tourists — were killed and about 40 persons were injured, several critically, near here when a bus plunged 45 feet off an autobahn on to a railroad track.

Bennett Ducks Debate On Columbia—Fulton

Premier Bennett has ducked an invitation to public debate on the Columbia River scheme, provincial Conservative leader Davie Fulton charged last night.

"I invited Premier Bennett to debate the Columbia in public when he is in Golden Saturday," Mr. Fulton said.

DEADLINE SET

"The letter was mailed July 6 by registered mail. I told Mr. Bennett that if I did not have his reply by 5 p.m. today I would make it public.

"I have had no answer. I assume then that the premier is ducking the debate. This is in keeping with his tactics of refusing to give the facts to the public."

Meanwhile, Mr. Bennett has warned the province of Saskatchewan to "keep its cotton-picking hands off our resources."

He was commenting on Premier Lloyd's statement expressing grave concern about the effects on the prairies of Columbia River development.

"It is B.C.'s development," said Mr. Bennett. "That NDP government had better be told to keep its cotton-picking hands off our resources."

Swainson Rites Thursday

Alexander Swainson, who retired from the Colonist Printing and Publishing Co. in 1954 after 42 years of service with the bindery department, died Monday at 81. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 3 p.m. in McCall's chapel.

Mr. Swainson came to Victoria in 1912 and served four years overseas during the First World War with the Black Watch. He was a member of the First United Church and the IOOF.

Driver Fined $250

A man who drove into a parked car on Lockley Road Monday night pleaded guilty to impaired driving when he appeared in Esquimalt magistrate's court Tuesday.

Leroy Bobroske, 9838 Maple, Chemainus, was fined $250 and has his licence suspended. He told police he had been drinking wine. Damage to each car was $100.

Alexander Tait, Jordan River Hotel, was fined $50 in Sooke magistrate's court Tuesday for selling beer after closing hours.

Lester Greenshields of Jordan River was fined $25 for failure to file an income tax return.

Industrials Strengthen At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—With finishing adjustments to the budget, the stock market climbed hopefully during exceptionally light trading Tuesday.

Among gaining industrials, Federal Grain advanced 1 to 60 with Distillers Seagrams, Molson A and Interprovincial Pipe Line ahead ⅛. Shell Canada rose ⅛ and CPR climbed ⅛. Abitibi, Imperial Oil and Steel Company of Canada advanced ⅛.

Moore dipped ⅛, Canada Cement and Southam ⅛ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ among scattered gainers.

Internal reaction to a proposed four-company amalgamation was generally higher, Anglo-Huronian up $1.65 to $9.50. Bouzan up 10 to 61 cents, Kerr-Addison unchanged at $6.85 and Prospectors Airways down 13 to 64 cents.

Mining Corporation jumped 2⅛ following a takeover proposal by Noranda. Noranda advanced ⅛.

National Petroleum climbed 53 cents to $2.55 and Unisphere dipped three to 47 cents, both on heavy turnover in western oils.

Banks Stay Dull

MONTREAL (CP) — All sectors of the market were steady or higher with the exception of banks. Royal lost ⅛. Imperial fell ⅛ and Montreal and Banque Canadienne Nationale were both lower by ⅛.

Papers were unchanged on the index at 108.9. Abitibi and Bowater both added ⅛. Brown fell ⅛, Consolidated was off ⅛ and Fraser dropped ⅛.

Utilities were mostly higher. B.C. Power was up ⅛.

Hudson's Bay Co. gained ⅛ to 14⅛ in light trade and CPR was up ⅛. Du Pont was up ⅛, Southam fell ⅛ and Argus Corp., was better by ⅛.

Construction issues were active and mixed following the lifting of the tax on building materials. Building Products and Dominion Bridge both added ⅛ and Dominion Tar and Chemical was up ⅛. Consumers' Glass fell ⅛ and Dominion Glass was down ⅛.

Refining oils were improved, led by Interprovincial Pipe Line, up a full point. Imperial, B.A. Oil and Trans - Canada Pipe Lines were all up ⅛.

Rally at New York

NEW YORK (AP)—A growing belief that President Kennedy will find some way of averting a U.S.-wide railroad strike threatened for Thursday accompanied a smart stock market recovery.

Rails, motors and steels were in the forefront early in the day as the list mounted a broad advance taking in many of the major stock groups. Late in the day as some prices were trimmed, the savings-and-loan holding companies staged a late rally of their own.

Prices Mixed

VANCOUVER — Industrials were mixed with B.C. Power strong at $21⅛. Dominion Tar at 18⅝, Westcoast at 15 and B.C. Sugar at 35.

Canadian Collieries at 9⅞ and MacMillan at 23⅛ were easier, but B.C. Forest gained a fraction at 19⅛ as did Pacific Pete and Neon Products.

Mines did little with Bethlehem and Granduc each at 4.50 and Western at 3.90.

Bond Mart Plunges

Sharpest Fall Of 1963

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonial Business Editor

The Canadian bond market took its sharpest fall of 1963 Tuesday when government and other securities dropped between a half and a full point.

Brokers say the Bank of Canada contributed to the decline when it lowered its supporting bids in a number of government of Canada issues.

The 4½ per cents of 1983 as a consequence dropped to 93, down 1¼ points from last Friday's close, while the recently-issued 5 per cents of 1988 dropped from 99 to 98½.

BANK CUT BID

In each case the bank lowered its supporting bid by the amount of the drop.

Bond market weakness was also evident in the U.S. where the 91-day treasury bill rate rose to 3.164 per cent, the highest it has been since June 1960.

An increase in the U.S. federal reserve bank's rediscount rate is regarded as "imminent" in the words of one U.S. bond market report, and there is some spreading of belief the current era of cheap money in the U.S. is coming to an end.

DOLLAR EMERGENCY

U.S. treasurer Douglas Dillon says his country is facing another dollar emergency, largely caused by a heavy flow of U.S. dollars into Canada and Europe.

He indicated the earning rate of money in the U.S. was too low to prevent the export of dollars into foreign investment, and the gap in international interest rates might have to be brought closer together by higher domestic borrowing rates.

GORDON BLAMED

An additional and, of course, very real additional depressant in the Canada market was Mr. Gordon's revision of the budget. In plunging the country into a further state of indebtedness during the current year, Mr. Gordon has shattered the hopes of his former money market friends that he was going to get the national budget into balance.

Conversely, Mr. Gordon's partial surrender on the question of extending the sales tax into the building and machinery industries was received with some enthusiasm on the stock markets.

INDUSTRIALS HIGHER

Canadian industrial stocks were mainly higher, but the advance was patchy and was not extended to barometer stocks such as the banks.

One broker with normally Liberal feelings said Tuesday: "We are disappointed in Mr. Gordon because we thought he knew what he was doing, but we are even more disappointed in Mr. Pearson in failing to recognize the weaknesses of the budget before it was tabled."

MINES TO MERGE

Anglo-Huronian, a mining company in which Noranda Mines holds 71 per cent of the shares, has made a proposal which would amalgamate four Canadian mining companies, including itself.

The proposal is that Kerr Addison, Bouzan Mining and Prospectors Airways should form along with Anglo-Huronian a new mining company in which Noranda would have control.

Shares in the four mining companies would be exchanged into shares of the new company on the basis of one for one Kerr Addison, eight for five Anglo-Huronian; one for 10 Bouzan and one for 10 Prospectors Airways.

PAYMENTS CLIMB

Dividends being paid by Canadian companies are running 10 per cent ahead of last year's record level, and with five months to go already seem assured of setting up a new distribution peak for 1963.

The total for the seven months to July 31 is computed at $549,739,504 by the investment firm of J. R. Timmins and Co. This compares with $498,300,293 in the corresponding period of 1962 and with $463,799,602 in 1961.

The July payments of $79,091,178 were also a record, and the improvement reflects increased rates by Canadian Breweries, Canadian Industries, Consolidated Paper, Du Pont Canada, Great Lakes Paper, John Labatt, Consolidated Mining and George Weston.

DRILLING FINDS ORES

Drilling reports from the Western Mines property at Buttle Lake are that five-metal ores still are being encountered on drifting at the 1,350 level of both the Paramount and Lynx mines.

Latest samples from the Paramount drift give these values: gold 0.37 ounces, silver 8.64 ounces, copper 1.19 per cent, lead 3.10 per cent and zinc 14.11 per cent. First samples from the 1,350 Lynx level are gold 0.06 ounces, silver 4.71 ounces, copper 1.93 per cent, lead 2.09 per cent and zinc 15.98 per cent.

Further drifting and shafting is being done to establish structure patterns.

GOLD MILL BOUGHT

Silbak Premier Mines Ltd. has purchased for $55,000 a cyanide mill from Cariboo Gold Quartz Ltd. for use at its gold-silver property on Portland Canal near Stewart. The mill is at the French mine at Hedley and will be dismantled and re-erected at Silbak this year. Initial production will be at the rate of 100 to 150 tons a day.

RIO ALGOMO VENTURE

Rio Algomo Mines Ltd. is one of several large mining companies providing financing for a copper mining venture in South Africa.

The Canadian mining giant, along with Newmont Mining Corporation and American Metal Climax Inc., of the U.S., will combine with Rio Algomo in raising $111,000,000 for the development of a vast open pit mining operation at Phalaborwa, in northeastern Transvaal.

Traffic Deaths Set New High

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic deaths in the U.S. hit a record high for a four-day U.S. Independence Day holiday.

Traffic accidents cost the lives of 538 persons during the 102-hour holiday period extending from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Sunday. The previous high toll for a four-day Fourth of July holiday was 509, set in 1961.

Missile Tested

TOKYO (AP) — The defence agency Monday successfully test-fired the first missile made in Japan—an air-to-air weapon—at the firing range on Niijima Island 100 miles south of Tokyo.

Square Planners

Tax Delay Blessing

The move to defer the full impact of the 11 per cent federal tax on building materials could turn out to be a blessing in disguise for planners of Centennial Square.

Ald. A. W. Toone, chairman of the committee in charge of planning the $2,000,000 civic project, said yesterday it could result in redoubled efforts to complete all major buildings before the full tax becomes effective in 1965.

DIFFICULT JOB

But this will be difficult to accomplish, he added, because even now the committee is searching every avenue for funds to complete the project in the shortest possible time.

"The committee has yet to formally consider Mr. Gordon's amended regulations but we'll doubtless try to push every bit of Centennial Square work we can into the category where it should qualify for winter work grants," the chairman said.

OFFSET EXTRA COST

This will probably offset at least the greater part of the additional costs.

However, Ald. Toone added, "we would have done this anyway."

Planners estimated at the time the original 11 per cent tax was announced that it would add roughly six per cent to the total cost of the project. No revised estimate has been prepared for the immediate four per cent tax bite.

Money Talks

LONDON (UPI)—The United States and Britain have agreed in diplomatic talks here that Russia should pay up or shut up in the United Nations, U.S. sources said Tuesday. This means, they said, that unless the Soviet Union pays the UN what it owes by Jan. 1 next year it should be forced to forfeit its General Assembly vote.

Golfer Builds His Own

By TED SHACKLEFORD

What does a keen amateur golfer do when he finds all the nearby courses so crowded that he can't get a game? Well, Cliff Phoenix of Metchosin built his own golf course.

"We bought 30 acres of land at 4101 Metchosin Road and started to put in a pitch and putt course but then I decided to use it all and put in the nine holes," he said last night.

He will open the course to the public Saturday with green fees of 50 cents and a 50-cent charge for the rent of clubs.

Metchosin PTA will operate a refreshment concession on the course and a public dance will be held in Metchosin Hall in the evening. Admission to the hall will be by donation to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

"I like playing golf every chance I get," Mr. Phoenix said, "but I found I had to put in a reservation a week ahead to play. So I built my own."

The nine holes range from 169 yards to 356 yards in length and professional golfers advised Mr. Phoenix on how to lay out the course.

"I had planned to open the course next year but so many Metchosin people have been asking me to open it this summer that I agreed."

So far there is no clubhouse—that's a project to be completed by next year.

NANAIMO—The wakeathon that began July 1 when Gary Haraldson, 16, and Eddie Dumont, 16, decided to see how long they could stay awake ended Monday night when Gary went to bed after passing the 175-hour mark. The other youth fell asleep Sunday after 144 hours.

Acting Deans Named By Varsity

Two acting deans of faculties at Victoria University have been appointed by the board of governors.

College vice-principal Robert Wallace was appointed acting dean of arts and science while director of teacher education H. C. Gilliland was named acting dean of education.

The appointment are expected to hold until a full-time president is appointed.

Dancing Pupils Take Honors

Pupils of the Adeline and Heather Duncan Highland Dancing Studio have won top honors at four Highland gatherings.

Cheryl Rafter, 6, of 2614 Eastdowne, won the under-seven class in Edmonton and Red Deer. Gail Bamford, 1080 Transit, won the under-11 class in Vancouver and Portland, and Cheryl Anne Jackson, 632 Head, took the under-nine aggregate trophy in Portland.

Soldiers Due Soon

Two hundred and fifty soldiers, representing 18 militia units throughout B.C., will arrive at Albert Head Sunday for six weeks of training. Aim of the training is to produce qualified junior and senior NCOs and trained militiamen.

Gordon in Good Health—Mike

OTTAWA (CP) — The process of drafting a federal budget needs overhauling to provide more consultation within the cabinet and between the government and the public before tax decisions are made, Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday.

Government measures and their impact on the community are becoming so complicated, he said, "a good deal of discussion of the issues involved" is necessary.

He also told a press conference he believes Finance Minister Gordon "is in very good health," and "I think he is good for many years yet." But Mr. Pearson made no reply to reporters' questions about Mr. Gordon's political health as finance minister.

Parade Awards Presented

About 40 people gathered in the Council Chambers of City Hall last night to receive trophies won in the Victoria Day Parade. Receiving trophies are from left, front, Randi Johl (East Indian Women's Society), Marlene Cummins (Victoria Drill Corps), and Eleanor Allan (Eagles Ladies Auxiliary Drill Team). In rear, Brig. Ronald Frewing (Salvation Army Brass Band) and Jack Smith (Historical Characters).

By Jim Tang

COURTENAY—Training at the camp of the B.C. Lions is at the stage where the annual guessing game is in full swing. There are 54 players here but by this time next week the number will probably have been reduced by a dozen. The three exhibition games will see the number of players still with a chance for season-long employment reduced to fewer than 40. The Lions will keep 16 of their 24 imports and about 20 of their 30 Canadians. Who they will be is a fascinating puzzle being worked by fan, reporter, player and coach.

Anyone with any reasonable knowledge of the club can safely pick 20 or 25 players who, barring injury, will remain with the club for the season. But not even head-coach Dave Skrien or his assistants, Frank Johnston and Jim Champion could, even if they were so inclined, hazard more than a reasonable guess on the complete final selections until just before the opening game Aug. 8 and even then, the coaches will admit, they can only hope they were right in at least two or three instances.

At this stage of training, only five days before the annual intra-squad game, there is no reason for any player with ability to despair. Or, except in no more than two dozen instances, for any player to believe he had it made. Too many things yet to happen will figure in the final selection and there will be several instances in which jobs are decided more by an inadequacy in another position than by what a player shows. There are many ramifications.

* * *

As an example, one can take the four regular linebacking jobs. Tom Brown must certainly be considered a certainty at one of the two interior spots but not even the coaches can say for certain whether it will be veteran Don Vicic, sophomore Gary Schwertfeger or Jim Smith, a 235-pound rookie from Utah state who has caught the eyes of the coaches, at the second post.

Going for Vicic is his steady play in six previous seasons with the Lions and the fact that he can do more than an adequate job as a fullback, where the Lions need someone behind incumbent nub beamer. In Schwertfeger's favor besides an obvious ability for the job is the fact that he is a standout centre. Yet the final choice may well rest on the ability of someone else at another position.

Canadians Ian Hagemoen and Greg Findlay are vieing for the job as the regular centre and it is Skrien's hope that the job can adequately be filled by a Canadian player. It seems a reasonable hope but if Hagemoen and Findlay should leave something to be desired, the Lions may have to use an import at that spot. That would give Schwertfeger a job as a centre and, likely, force the Lions to use a Canadian alongside Brown. That could deprive Vicic and Smith of their chance regardless of ability.

As for Vicic's versatility value, it may be nullified if rookie back Bill Munsey, who seems to be a cinch as a defensive-half-back, should show that he is an adequate standby for fullback beamer. Munsey is big and fast and runs hard and the Lions have him in mind as possible fullback insurance. The final decision on Brown's partner rests as much with Hagemoen, Findlay and Munsey as it does with Vicic, Schwertfeger and Smith.

* * *

However, there is always the chance that another linebacking job will be up for grabs. Veteran Norm Fieldgate and Paul Seale, a rookie Canadian who was a standout at Oregon State, are ticketed for the starting jobs as corner linebackers. Seale gives every indication of being able to fill the bill but the final proof, for the coaches, won't come until they have seen him in action in exhibition games.

Similarly, rookie-import ends John Hudson and Gene Gibbs may have to wait for future developments. The Lions hope to use Canadian talent at the offensive end positions and have in Jim Carphin and Pat Claridge players who handled the jobs well last season. But Carphin had a serious case of hepatitis and it will take time to learn if he is fully recovered. Much also depends on big Jerry Janes, now a Canadian citizen. The Lions lack depth at the spot and it will take exhibition-game assessment to decide if Janes will be able to provide it. Meanwhile, Hudson and Gibbs have the chance to show that either or both are capable if a job opens up, or prove good enough to force retention in any case.

Then there are the cases of veteran Earl Keeley and rookie Pete Ohler, the two Canadian quarterbacks.

The Lions have Joe Kapp as the regular, highly-regarded Mel Melin as the standby and rookie Steve Shafer, trying for the club as a defensive back, in addition to Keeley and Ohler as quarterbacks. It is obvious that they won't need two Canadians at this position but it does not mean that quarterbacking will decide who is kept.

Ohler is young, husky competent looking and fresh from college action under tough Jim Owens at University of Washington. The Lions will give him every chance, and his best one at the moment rests with his ability to do a job as a defensive-halfback. It is possible he may even be good enough to enable the Lions to use him regularly so that only one import instead of the planned two is needed in the defensive backfield. This is only supposition but if it happened, the Lions could use an import at another position—say, at offensive end.

* * *

But this doesn't eliminate Keeley. The Lions have tabbed Neal Beaumont for punting duties but Keeley, who has proven he is a fine pressure punter, is the next man in line and there doesn't seem anyone else who is adequate behind Beaumont. The Lions gave guard Steve Cotter a try at it Tuesday without solid indication that he is the answer to the problem of a standby kicker.

That's the way it goes in a football training camp. There is always a job open for anyone with ability if the cards fall right. Almost anyone can place two-thirds of the final personnel but how it becomes necessary to fill those last few jobs is the important thing. If they could be filled by assessing ability at any position it would be easy but the more jobs that are decided by inadequacy at other positions the bigger the problem of winning.

The Day Was All Mays'

Most happy fellah before, during and after yesterday's All-Star baseball game was San Francisco Giant Willie Mays. He laughs it up in undressing room following game and dances jig, right, not in happiness but in pain after catching foot in fence after hauling down Joe Pepitone's long, drifting fly in ninth inning. He didn't injure himself, however. — (AP Photofax)

All-Stars All Dim

Willie Keeps Fans Awake

By OSCAR FRALEY

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Wondrous Willie Mays saved the 34th all-star game from complete dullness Tuesday when he knocked home the winning run, set two records and tied another, and made the best catch in the National League's 5-3 victory over the American League.

It was a cheap run, typical of the ball game this crisp sunny day, which Mays sent winging home in the fifth inning, for the Dodgers' Tommy Davis had gone from first to third on an error. But it counted and the insurance run the Nationals added off Boston reliever Dick Radatz in the eighth stowed the game away.

Those two runs before a disappointing crowd of 44,160 awarded the triumph to the Cubs' Larry Jackson, although he gave up four hits and two runs in two innings as the American Leaguers bombed five National league hurlers for 11 hits.

The defeat was hung on Jim Bunning, although the Detroit pitcher did not give up a hit in two innings.

But the Tiger tosser was on the hill in that unlucky fifth when he opened it by walking Davis. Once again it was a case of "oh, those bases on balls," when, with one out, Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson failed to hold a force-out toss, Davis romped on to third and Mays got him in as he grounded out to first base.

They'll debate that play for a long time, because Joe Pepitone of the Yankees seemed to have a shot at Davis as he zoomed toward the plate — but elected to make the play at first while the tie-breaking run scored.

Wondrous Willie stole two bases to run his all-star record to a total of five; he boosted his total of runs scored to a record of 15; and he came up with his 20th hit to tie Stan Musial — appearing in his record 24th and a record 63rd time at-bat—for most all-star hits.

It was Willie, too, who made the best catch of the game when he ran up against the centre field fence to nail a long drive by Pepitone in the eighth inning.

He had to be the big gun in what was the National League's 16th win, moving them to within one game of the 17 victories which have been posted by the American, one game having ended in a tie.

THE GOAT

The goat, if there was one as the Americans dropped their seventh game in the last nine all-star contests, had to be Richardson.

One of the top Yankee heroes in the last World Series, where he made the final put-out to beat Mays and his Giant teammates, Richardson's error set up that gift run which proved the winner, swatted into a double play with two on and one out in the sixth inning —and hit into a ninth-inning double play which ended the ball game.

HARDLY ALL-STAR

It hardly was what could be called all-star pitching either, as the teams walloped their way through the first three innings with the Americans twice battling back to tie it up.

The Nationals jumped into a 1-0 lead in the second when Mays walked and stole second base. Ed Bailey then walked and, after Ken Boyer popped up, Dick Groat singled through the hole to score free-wheeling Willie and send Bailey to second.

Starter Ken McBride got the next two batters to end that threat.

BY HIMSELF

McBride got that run back himself in the bottom of the second after the Angels' Leon Wagner singled to left but stayed there as the next two hitters went down before National League starter Jim O'Toole.

Wagner moved to second when Zoilo Versalles was hit on the knee. Then McBride slapped a single off Boyer's glove to score Wagner and tie it up.

SCORES AARON

The NL bounced right back with two runs in the third. Davis led off with a single off McBride, but was forced by Hank Aaron. Hammerin' Hank moved to second when White grounded out to first. Mays then rifled a single to centre, scoring Aaron.

It was Mays' 20th hit in all-star play, tying him for the most with Musial. Then he ran his own stolen base mark to five by sailing down to second and came home with his second run — and record 15th — on Bailey's single to centre for a 3-1 National lead.

BOUNCE BACK

The Americans bounced back again as Jackson took over the pitching chore for the Nats.

Little Albie Pearson came up with a leadoff double, his second straight hit, and, with one away, scored on a single to left by new papa Frank Malzone of the Red Sox, whose wife gave birth to their third son this morning. Wagner sacrificed him to second, and it paid off when Earl Battey slashed a single to centre which scored Malzone with the run that tied it at 3-3.

The American Leaguers gave it away in the top of the fifth when Bunning walked Davis and, with one out, Malzone tried to force him at second base on White's grounder. The ball streaked through Richardson and Davis sped on to third.

Ti-Cats Lose Bobby Kuntz

Ralph Sazio, a rookie coach trying to fill the king-size shoes of Joe Trimble, got kicked right in the backfield yesterday.

Bobby Kuntz, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' leading ground-gainer in the Eastern Football Conference last season, told Sazio he is quitting football.

FINE FULLBACK

"I thought right along he'd be back with us," Sazio wailed. "He was a fine fullback and you could put him on defence too. That leaves us two positions to fill."

Kuntz, a 197-pound, 31-year-old Canadian, finished second to Montreal's George Dixon in rushing last season. He has retired before only to be talked out of it, but indicated this time it's definite.

FARRELL FUNSTON, one of eight veterans fighting for more money from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, came to terms yesterday. Still dickering are Herb Gray, Jack Delveaux, Gerry James, Henry Janzen, Nick Miller, Ron Latourelle and Jack Brusell . . . Bombers have lost four rookie imports — Gerry Hawkins and Mike Pirkle of North Texas State and Jim Cairns and Paul Benson of University of Minnesota. All quit camp and coach Bud Grant is especially disappointed at loss of Pirkle, who was being considered for defensive end, freeing Delveaux for the middle linebacker spot left open by retirement of Gar Warren.

Tennis Draw

Rain forced postponement of much of yesterday's play in the city hard courts tennis championships, and only four matches are scheduled tonight at Victoria Racquets Club.

The draw:

6 p.m. — Muir vs. Hicks.

7 — Aldeguer vs. Pollard; Clarkson and Wood vs. Woolison and McLeod.

7:15 — Winner Muir-Hicks vs. Lequesne.

TEAM NAMED

DENVER (AP) — Denver's new professional team in the Western Hockey League will be known as the Invaders.

Lions' TV Plan Gets Eagle Eye

COURTENAY (Special)—Professional football clubs all over North America will be paying close attention when B.C. Lions pipe their home games to Victoria via closed-circuit theatre television.

Teams in the Canadian, National and American Football Leagues are waiting to see if the experiment works—and if it does they'll be jumping into theatre television with both feet.

So great is the interest that general-manager Elroy Hirsch of Los Angeles Rams is coming to Victoria for the first televised game, an exhibition with Ottawa Rough Riders Aug. 1 at the Royal Theatre.

Word of all this interest came from no less an authority than Lions' general-manager Herb Capozzi, who flew back from Winnipeg after beating off poachers of his pet project.

The rest of the Western Football Conference teams had been demanding a cut of receipts from the telecasts, but Capozzi pointed out that if they were ready to share the porfits they should also be ready to help absorb any loss. Clutching their wallets protectively, they agreed to let the show proceed on a one-year experimental basis.

TO FILL THEATRE

Season tickets sales have gone well over the 300 mark, and Capozzi says Lions will definitely fill the 1,500-seat theatre for the opener.

Fans who buy their season tickets now (at $24, $20 and $16) get the exhibition game thrown in free in addition to the eight league telecasts. Tickets are on sale at Eatons, and all profits, if any, go to minor football development on Vancouver Island.

* * *

CFL officials also decided that injured players may be put on the inactive list as of a club's first league game, and must remain there for 30 days. This will probably be the fate of Lions' halfbacks Mack Burton and Tom Larscheid.

Burton, still recovering from a leg operation, is almost certain to go on the list. Larscheid, who will miss at least seven games while letting his knee injury mend in any case, will be put on it if Norris Stevenson plays well enough in Lions' three exhibition games to fill his halfback slot.

Lions also have an ace in the hole in that lineman Tommy Hinton becomes a Canadian citizen as of Aug. 15, which will give them the opportunity of keeping another import.

Wakeham Beaten In Medal Playoff

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver's Terry Campbell, a 20-year-old with 14 years of tournament experience, won medal honors in the B.C. Amateur golf tournament Tuesday in a one-hole playoff for the top spot.

Campbell, a student at University of Maryland and on a golf scholarship, defeated last year's medallist Bill Wakeham of Victoria when he sank a 10-foot putt that left him one under on the playoff hole. Wakeham was four to the green. Both had finished the qualifying 36 holes in two-over-par 146.

Today, the low 32 move into match play with one round. There will be a single round Thursday, two rounds Friday and the 36-hole final Saturday.

Only other Victoria golfer to qualify was Noel Pumfrey, who had a 77 Monday and a 74 Tuesday. Gary Smith missed the cutoff with 81-79—160 and Ricky Kent did also, with 79-79—158.

Gray and Bionda Tonight's Feature

Billy Gray is a defenceman by trade and a basher by choice. Tonight at Memorial Arena he runs head-on into Jack Bionda, and the crash may be heard for miles around.

Coach Don Ashbee has handed his young defenceman the task of checking Bionda when Victoria Shamrocks play New Westminster in the Inter-City Lacrosse League. It's Ashbee's way of saying what the rest of the league is about ready to admit — at 21, Gray is rapidly turning into one of the best defencemen around.

"I wouldn't trade him for any player in this league right now," Ashbee said last night. "He's not the best there is yet, but I don't see how he can help but become the best the way he's going lately. He's got more potential than anybody else around."

STRONG TALK

That's pretty strong talk, but no one can deny that Gray has developed almost overnight into both a rugged checker and a continual scoring threat. Gray has scored five goals in his last two games, and his penchant for sending his 190 pounds over people rather than around them has turned him into a crowd favorite.

"I'd pay my way in just to watch him hit somebody," Ashbee says gleefully. "But it's not just that. He's got the speed and the shot, and now he's got the confidence. He's going to be a good one."

Gray's confidence may get the full test tonight, because no one in this league has ever been able to stop Bionda consistently, and Jack has added incentive tonight.

Bionda has 602 goals, and needs only four more to pass Bill Dickinson and become the second-highest scorer in league history. Jackie Northup's all-time record of 635 is also beckoning, and Bionda likes nothing better than to run wild in Memorial Arena against his former club.

Game time is 8:30.

Gordie Remembers Vic's Goal

Howe's Brother Had Brief NHL Fling

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The good-looking six-footer who patrols a beat here as a Canadian National Railways police constable has a flock of hockey memories.

He's Victor Stanley Howe, 33, younger brother of Gordie Howe, and he too has seen service in the National Hockey League.

During the 1950s Vic Howe played parts of three seasons with New York Rangers. At other times he was with Cincinnati of the American league, Saskatoon, Vancouver and Brandon of the Western league and Valleyfield of the Quebec league.

His best season was with Saskatoon in 1953-54 when he scored 35 goals and 23 assists in 65 games.

During a total of 33 games with Rangers he managed a modest three goals and four assists.

Compared with the great Gordie—19 months his senior — he cannot be said to have approached stardom. But when you figure that at any one time there are only 100-odd regulars in the NHL, you have to conclude that anyone who makes it to the big time, even for a spell, has more than an ordinary share of skills.

Vic, weighing 215 pounds now compared with 172 during his regular playing days, cherishes one memory of his time with New York.

It was a game against Detroit Red Wings and Rangers were trailing 3-2 in the third period.

"I was lucky enough to score the next goal and the game ended in a tie, 3-3."

Later he went to Gordie's home for a steak dinner.

"Gordie didn't think much of that tying goal," Vic recalls. "He said I could buy my own steak if I did that again."

Vic, who was born in Saskatoon and got his start in peewee hockey there, helped his hometown club to a provincial juvenile title in 1945-46, then went to a Detroit training camp at Windsor, Ont., and played for Windsor in the International league.

He got his first chance with New York in 1950-51, playing three games. Then after tours with Cincinnati and Saskatoon he was back in New York briefly in 1953-54 and again the following season.

He later regained his amateur status and played in Western Canada for a season.

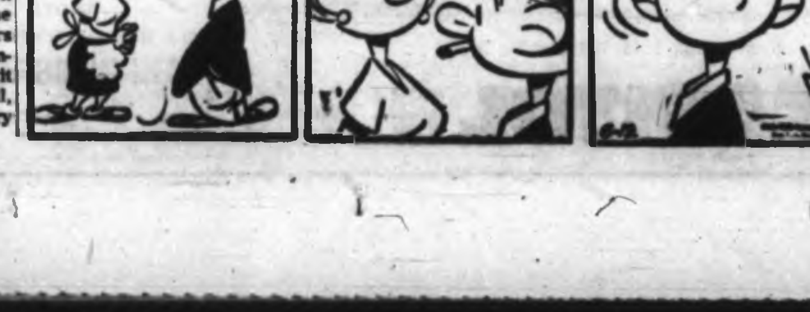

He married the former Jacqueline White of Moncton and together they travelled to England where he joined other Canadian players hired by Percy Nicklin, manager of a London arena and a former coach of the old Moncton Hawks.

After eight months the Howes headed for Moncton and his job with the CNR.

Vic was out of hockey for four years and then played a season for Moncton Beavers before quitting the game for keeps.

Slower reflexes, the responsibilities of supporting a wife and a young daughter and the lack of injury insurance were deciding factors. And working a variety of shifts left no time for coaching.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

If you like to tramp along an interesting beach, row or cruise along the seashore, or simply sit on a rocky bluff and watch the marine life go by, Clifford Carl's new Guide to Marine Life of British Columbia is a must for you.

This new booklet in the series of handbooks produced by the provincial museum opens up new avenues of outdoor enjoyment and describes just about all the marine life you are likely to see along the seashore, from kelp and clams, through killer whales, to even Victoria's beloved Caddy.

You will even find a recipe showing how to make kelp pickle.

"Killers (whales) are armed with 10 to 13 pairs of conical teeth in each jaw, arranged so they interlock. Food consists of anything 'eatchable' such as seals, sea-lions, porpoises, various fishes, squids, and sea birds.

"They also attack larger whales which have no defence against 'wolf pack' tactics.

"There are no authentic records of them attacking humans, but it would be wise not to provide them with an opportunity," writes Carl.

The booklet is full of that kind of information.

Harbor porpoise, the kind you see when salmon fishing, all porpoise, humpback whales, and pike whales are all described. Harbor seals, northern sea-lions, river otters and sea otters are all included in the booklet and illustrations by museum artist Frank Beebe make identification easy.

The common loon spends the winter months on salt water and in the spring migrates to freshwater for nesting, says Carl. Arctic Loons, red-throated loons, grebes of five varieties, cormorants and herons are all described and pictured.

* * *

When we took up shotgun shooting a couple of years ago we found to our surprise that we were quite ignorant about the identification of many of the sea birds, which were fair game and edible. Since then we have increased our enjoyment manyfold just trying to identify the birds we see along the seashore.

Often we have taken along several books to help us in our identification, including three or four of the museum booklets.

As a matter of fact we first heard about this new booklet several weeks ago when we were cruising Gulf Island waters with Dr. Carl and he was helping us to identify various birds. At that time it wasn't off the presses.

This new booklet takes the commonly-seen marine life from the other museum books, adds a great many other forms of marine life, and combines them in one handy booklet.

Black brant, mallards, widgeon, shoveller ducks, scaups, golden eye ducks, old squaw ducks, harlequin ducks, scoters, merganzers, bald eagles, coots, oyster catchers, surf birds, turnstones, sandpipers, phalarope, gulls in their various species, murres, guillemots, murrelets and kingfishers are all described and illustrated.

All species of salmon are described and for King Fishermen this is the book you need to set you right to identify your catch as coho or chinook (spring) salmon.

Dogfish, sharks, herring, skate, perch, rockfishes and even the various forms of jellyfish, starfish, sea urchins and sand dollars come under discussion.

Clams, mussels, crabs and other shellfish are included, even seaworms, and there is a special section for the various kinds of seaweeds commonly found along the seashore.

This booklet sells for 50 cents and may be obtained at the provincial museum. It is the 21st in the museum series of pocket-sized handbooks and one that we recommend to every beach-loving outdoorsman.

We suggest that those who plan to make the trip into Port Renfrew's Botanical Beach (next good tides are July 20 and 21 at 7:39 in the morning Saturday and 8:22 on the Sunday) will be able to increase their pleasure in the marine gardens many times if they take along this new booklet.

Palmer Sizzles With 66

ST. ANNES, England (AP)—Arnold Palmer shot a four-under-par 66 Tuesday in his final practice round for the British Open Golf Championship with an exhibition of driving that left most of his 119 rivals gasping.

The 33-year-old Latrobe, Pa., pro sets out Wednesday as the 2-to-1 favorite to take his third straight British Open crown.

Peter Thomson of Australia is the only golfer who has won the Open three straight times in modern history.

'MARVELLOUS'

"Arnold missed only one fairway," Phil Rodgers of La Jolla, Calif., said. "His driving was marvellous. He missed the fairway at the 15th—and then only by about 10 feet."

Palmer, Rodgers, Jack Nicklaus, the U.S. Masters champion from Columbus, Ohio; and Gary Player, the South African who is fifth in the money standings in the United States, played together.

Rodgers shot a 67, Player a 71 and Nicklaus a 73.

The players will play 18-hole rounds Wednesday and Thursday with the field cut to the 45 low scorers for the final 36 holes Friday.

England Ties Cricket Series

Trueman Rips West Indies

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters) — Freddie Trueman shattered the West Indies in the third Test here Tuesday with seven wickets for 44, enabling England to win by 217 runs and even the series at 1-1, with one match drawn.

Two matches in the five-match series remain to be played.

Final scores: England 216 and 278 for nine, declared; West Indies 186 and 91.

A deadly spell of six wickets for four runs in 24 balls by Trueman brought about a dramatic collapse after lunch when the West Indies lost its last seven wickets for 36 runs in 55 minutes.

Trueman's seven wickets brought his match analysis to 12 for 119—the best performance of his Test career.

Other matches:

At Manchester—Nottinghamshire beat Lancashire by 84 runs. Nottinghamshire 186 and 101; Lancashire 85 and 108 (J. Cotton five for 38.)

At Derby—Derbyshire beat Pakistan Eaglets by eight wicken. Pakistan Eaglets 150 and 175 (A. Jackson seven for 56); Derbyshire 307 and 19 for two.

At Pontypridd—Glamorgan beat Gloucestershire by six wickets. Gloucestershire 197 for eight, declared, and Glamorgan 166 for five, declared, and 97 for four wickets.

At Hove—Match drawn. Surrey 173 for seven, declared, and 122 for six, declared; Sussex 136 and 61 for six.

At Kidderminster—Match drawn. Worcestershire 220 for five, declared, and 132 for three, declared; Kent 149 for eight, declared, and 97 for three wickets.

At Leeds—Middlesex beat Yorkshire by six wickets. Yorkshire 147 and 147 for seven, declared; Middlesex 47 and 251 for four.

At Taunton—Match drawn. Essex 169 and 184 for six, declared; Somerset 200 for no wicket, declared and 172 for nine wickets.

At Bournemouth—Match drawn. Hampshire 228 and 169 for three, declared; Oxford University 186 and 213 for four.

At Lord's—Cambridge University beat MCC by seven wickets in a two-day match. MCC 181 and 272 for four, declared; Cambridge University 192 for nine, declared, and 223 for three.

Colts Lose To Rugby

LONDON (CP)—The Canadian cricket Colts team Tuesday lost their match with Rugby School, Warwickshire, by 111 runs.

Rugby batted first and declared at 201 for six wickets. Bowler Arthur Shaffer of Victoria took four wickets for 6 runs. The Canadians made 90 runs with Frank Buck of Toronto scoring 25.

The Canadians now have drawn one match and lost one in their 21-game English tour.

BAUMANN HURT

CHICAGO (AP) — Southpaw pitcher Frank Baumann of Chicago White Sox will be sidelined indefinitely by a torn biceps muscle in his throwing arm.

Tourists Prepared for Worst

Visitors Defy Drizzle

By JACK FRY

Rainy skies over southern Vancouver Island yesterday held down the wanderings of most tourists but they weren't as downcast as the sky was overcast.

Visitors spent more time in stores and dashing out of doors between showers for snapshots to take home with them.

Most of the tourists stopped on the streets near Inner Harbor yesterday by a Colonist reporter - photographer team were from Seattle where it was raining anyway.

* * *

One Seattle woman said that her parents had come up from southern California and that when the rain didn't let up in Seattle they decided to come on to Victoria.

Victoria residents feel they have had more than their share of rain for the summer, but cloudy skies apparently don't bother the tourists.

As tourist commissioner William Hawkins explained it yesterday, "they don't have sunshine in other places all the time and we can't get it here all the time."

* * *

The tourist industry here is loping along at its 1961 level, though somewhat behind the 1962 boom year brought about by the World's Fair in Seattle, he said.

The only person stopped by the Colonist team yesterday who didn't care for the rain was Mrs. Sarah Arenson, formerly of Jerusalem, Israel, which is known for its arid weather. "There's too much rain in B.C.," she said.

Her husband, Avie Arenson, formerly of Winnipeg, said he was last in British Columbia in 1958 when there was a severe drought here.

* * *

Lee Crawford, of Seattle, who has been here before, brought his young wife here for her first visit. They spent the day "walking in the rain and visiting shops."

A lot of tourists, however, were seen looking wistfully from the balconies of their motels and wandering about in sheltered areas, leaving Government Street to the braver persons during the heavier drizzles.

* * *

Goldstream Park was a little less than half-filled with campers and there was no sign of a mass exodus because of the showers. Most campers sat around comfortably under the shelter of canvas tarpaulins or polyethelene sheets.

* * *

Rain somewhat dampened the enthusiasm of Avie Arenson and his wife Sarah, who are touring the continent between engineering assignments in Toronto. But couple made the most of their visit and got around to Thunderbird Park and other attractions.

Holding an umbrella over his wife while she snaps pictures in the rain at the Causeway yesterday is Lee Crawford of Seattle. Rain didn't bother this couple who spent the day in downtown shops.

10 Teams Compete In Shoot

Marksmen from 10 police shooting teams will compete in the annual revolver shoot sponsored by the Victoria City Police Revolver Club today and Thursday at the Thetis Lake range.

Competing in the event will be teams from Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, two teams from Vancouver, and an RCMP team. There will also be individual marksmen from Esquimalt, Port Alberni, Vancouver, Richland, Wash., and Ephrata, Wash.

Range officer will be Eugene Steele, chief of police of Friday Harbor, Wash.

Rain Causes Accidents

Rain-splashed streets caused a rash of minor car accidents in the Greater Victoria area Tuesday, but no serious injuries were reported.

Thirteen accidents were reported, with nine in the city and four in Saanich. Both Oak Bay and Esquimalt remained accident-free during the slippery hours.

Esquimalt Voters Go to Polls Today

Voting to elect a new member to Esquimalt council will be conducted today between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. at two polling places.

Municipal clerk J. W. Allan, who is returning officer for the election, said Tuesday polling places would be at the municipal hall on Esquimalt Road and at 855 Craigflower.

Esquimalt's voters' list is printed in two sections. All voters in Section I should vote at the municipal hall. Voters in Section II, those living in the northern part of the municipality, should vote at 855 Craigflower.

Those seeking election:

Ernest Cassels, 1196 Highrock; C. L. "Buzz" Fraser, 361 Lampson, and Arthur Mehs, 451 Lampson.

The men are seeking election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Coun. G. K. Sammon in England in May.

Frigates or Subs

Shipyards Set to Go

By DON GAIN
(Colonist Marine Reporter)

Victoria shipyards are ready to go at a moment's notice on construction of navy frigates but they would need a little more time to start turning out submarines.

Yarrows Ltd. general manager John Wallace said last night his shipyard is ready to tackle any shipbuilding orders the government may seek.

Victoria Machinery Depot general manager H. S. Hammill said the VMD firm hopes to participate in any defence building program.

They were commenting on chief of naval staff Vice-Admiral Herbert Rayner's statements to the Commons defence committee yesterday that the navy needs submarines "as quickly as we can get them," and "great numbers" of cheap anti-submarine surface vessels.

He said new frigates are needed to replace out-of-date Tribal class destroyers.

The RCN's anti-submarine force should comprise 24 surface ships, eight submarines and eight general purpose frigates with anti-submarine and anti-air missiles and aircraft capability, Admiral Rayner told the committee.

Naturally Interested

"If such a program is contemplated we would naturally be very interested," said Mr. Wallace.

"If the submarines be of a conventional type, not nuclear, this is a project we could undertake without too much difficulty."

Mr. Wallace said nuclear submarines also could be built in Victoria.

"The shipbuilding industry reviewed the building of nuclear submarines some three or four years ago," he said, "and it can be done by Canadian yards provided the know-how is available from the U.S."

He pointed out that "there is no more ideal spot for submarine building than the West Coast with its temperate year-round weather and water conditions.

"But it should be realized," Mr. Wallace said, "that such a submarine program would take considerable time once a decision was made, before it could be put into effect.

"This further stresses the importance of the general purpose frigate program because it is all set to go. Industry badly needs such a program to hold work forces intact."

Glad Admiral Concurs

"We are glad Admiral Rayner concurs that there is a need for the general purpose frigates."

Mr. Hammill said that work at VMD was holding up well with the work force at 1,000 men. "We've got a reasonable amount of work," he said, "for the immediate future. It is the long-range picture that concerns us."

The destroyer-escort Ottawa is at VMD for addition of variable-depth sonar and helicopter deck. A similar contract for conversion of the Assiniboine amounted to $2,000,000.

Under construction are two government ferries for $7,000,000. The keel will be laid this fall for a $5,000,000 Alaska Cruise Lines Ltd. ship.

The $800,000 fishery patrol vessel will be delivered next month, Mr. Hammill said.

Until Fall of 1964

He estimated industrial contracts made up about 30 per cent of VMD's business and, combined with shipbuilding, would provide work for the present force until the fall of 1964.

Mr. Wallace said Yarrows' current payroll numbered 500.

Keel for the $4,500,000 Pacific Naval Laboratory marine physics research ship will be laid Sept. 5, he said.

The 95-foot coast guard patrol vessel will be delivered toward the end of September.

A $600,000 self-loading log barge for Crown-Zellerbach will be delivered the end of this month. A general cargo carrier, worth $400,000, will be delivered to Gulf of Georgia Towing Co. in September.

A 7,500-ton Emerock barge for Vancouver Tug will be ready by the end of October.

Five large chip barges will be delivered next year.

"We have a considerable amount of industrial work, too," Mr. Wallace said. "The indications are that it should improve."

Boat Ramp on Reserve

Indians Help White Man To Help Indian Children

By JACK FRY

Construction of a boat-launching ramp on the South Saanich Indian Reserve near Brentwood Bay marks a new era in Indian and non-Indian relations in the Greater Victoria region.

Chief Samuel Sam, 38-year-old leader of the Tsartlip Band, said yesterday that a decision to open a corner of the reserve at Indian Bay to sports fishermen reflects a change of attitude by his people.

* * *

The new thinking is that Indian children on the reserve need a recreation centre and that the ramp can provide the necessary money.

"We are trying to keep delinquency down, and we want to keep the children occupied as much as we can," said the chief.

* * *

Indian children at the reserve have been encouraged in such activities as square dancing, Indian dancing and singing and soccer, but they need more training and "we are always looking for leadership —either Indian or non-Indian," Chief Sam said.

* * *

"It is about time we try to do something to help ourselves . . . to make our dreams come true.

"Older people on the reserve wanted to hang on to the heritage we have and stay the way we are, but young people think differently and want to look after themselves," he said.

* * *

The new ramp, which was started some months ago and is expected to be ready for use by September, will be the second in the Brentwood area. Jim Gilbert, of Gilbert's guide and boat rentals, opened a ramp less than a year ago.

* * *

Three years ago, Recreation Minister Earle Westwood stated publicly that the government would establish a ramp for Brentwood, but this has not yet been done.

Thousands of boaters fish from the Brentwood side of Saanich Inlet but had no place hitherto to launch trailer boats, except by going to the other end of the inlet where Hall's have a launching ramp at Goldstream and where Mill Bay Indians have a launching ramp adjacent to the Mill Bay ferry slip.

Several appeals have been made by non-Indians in the past to use this Indian Bay property which is a matter of yards from the main fishing grounds—to benefit both the Indians and non-Indians who were starving for a place to launch their boats.

Chief Sam said there is room for 100 cars to park down by the beach, below Stellys Cross Road. He hopes that a picnic area "on a par with any of the provincial government parks" can eventually be built near the boat ramp.

* * *

"This project is the first of its kind by Indians in the Greater Victoria area. Whether it will be successful or not only time will tell," said the chief who recently was re-elected to his second two-year term.

Food Price Drive

Women Fight 'Hidden Persuaders'

Vancouver Island housewives are joing housewives across Canada in a Consumers Association of Canada move to cut food prices by getting rid of hidden persuaders.

Mrs. A. B. Young, provincial president of CAS, received phone calls and offers of help following an article in the Colonist Tuesday in which she showed how careful shopping could cut down the family food budget.

FIGHT PREMIUMS

"Current campaign of the CAC is to do away with premiums and get food manufacturers to cut prices instead of offering gimmicks," Mrs. Young said.

One jelly manufacturer has done away with the premiums and has actually lowered its prices.

In many cases where there are premiums in the package, a profit is made not only on the product but also on the premium," she said.

"The trend to fancier packaging which has been the practice in the past few years is now changing, she said. "The trend now is to package in the plastic bag type container which is cheaper and cuts the cost. Packaging does cost the consumer money," she said.

WATCH FOR WEIGHT

"Another thing for the housewife to watch for in buying is that the weight is on the label of canned fruits and vegetables, detergents and soap packages," she said.

"A good book for housewives to read is Hidden Persuaders by Vance Packard, she said, "and it is available in local stores in the pocket edition."

Saanich Fears Unfounded

Hormones, Not Poison Used in Weed Spray

Fears of Saanich residents that children might be eating wild blackberries poisoned by roadside weed sprays were said last night to be unfounded.

A number of persons protested the use of a chemical spray along six or seven miles of road on Old West Road, Prospect Lake Road and Royal Oak Avenue.

But, Saanich municipal engineer Neville Life said yesterday that municipal officials had been assured by the firm which did the work that the spray used was "completely non-toxic."

Charles Cowie, of Charles A. Cowie Tree Surgeons Ltd., later said that his men used "an amine 2-4-D solution" which had been approved by the field crops division of the provincial department of agriculture.

"It is a hormone, not a poison like an insecticide," he said, and "there is no danger to anyone eating fruit that it may have drifted onto."

The solution was used near the ground on areas where winter works crews had cut away the weeds some months ago. Pressure behind the spray was also reduced to keep drift to a minimum, said Mr. Cowie.

Car Rolls Over Driver Unhurt

Leroy Charles Park, 21, of 12 Boyd Street, escaped injury Tuesday when his car left Sooke Road on Dewdney Flats, rolled over and struck a power pole.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by Langford Ambulance for a checkup. His car was extensively damaged.

Change Due This Year

Officials Draft Plan To End Roundabout

The city's official traffic committee hopes that it will soon have a workable plan for the elimination of the major traffic bottleneck at Fountain Circle.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said following a closed meeting of the committee yesterday that deliberations had reached the stage where "it appears that a major improvement can be made."

BLEND PROPOSALS

He said the committee was fully aware that "no solution would be perfect" for all needs. It has therefore decided to take the best features of two proposals by city hall traffic experts and weld them into a single plan.

Committee chairman Ald. Millard Mooney said the time had arrived "for positive action" on the part of city council.

WANT PROPERTY

He said a recommendation to council asks for acquisition of a strip of property on Hillside Avenue and for the immediate purchase of some $7,000 worth of traffic signals.

"We have a plan that is going to work — the engineers are just working on the final details now," the chairman said.

"We are asking council to have enough faith in us to order the traffic signals now so that there won't be a delay later."

Ald. Mooney predicted the roundabout would be replaced by a signalized intersection before the end of 1963.

"Six months ago I wouldn't have thought this would be possible so soon," he added.

COMPLEMENT PLAN

Both he and the mayor agreed that proposed removal of the roundabout would complement the city's current plan for extension of Rose Street in moving more traffic into the heart of the downtown area.

Rough estimates of the total cost of removing the roundabout and substituting a fully signalized intersection, according to latest reports, is about $45,000. About half this amount would be spent now if the additional property and signals were bought as the committee wishes.

There is some $28,000 in city coffers that was allocated several years ago for improvement of Fountain Circle and has never been spent.

Garden Notes

They Like Wet Feet

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

So far, this has been a pretty good year for sweet peas, the first flush of blooms has been all anyone could desire. The problem from here on in will be to keep up the performance, for there is a strong tendency for sweet peas to go "off" rather badly with the coming of hot, dry weather.

Any extended period of drought will mean regular watering, especially for those gardeners with light sandy or gravelly soil, for adequate moisture at the roots is essential for quality sweet peas. Tired-looking foliage, short flower stems or a droopy tip to the vine are all danger signals, indicating need for water down below. You can overdo the watering, mind you, and root rot is a fairly common occurance where sweet peas are grown in trenches on heavy, poorly drained soil.

* * *

My method of watering is to take out a little irrigation ditch about an inch deep and eight inches away from the line of plants, and trickle the hose into this furrow very slowly until the sweet pea row has had about five gallons per running yard.

I irrigate on only one side of the row, going over to the other side the next time I water, as too much at one time can flood and chill the roots, causing an annoying spell of bud-dropping.

While too much moisture at the roots can lead to trouble, you can hardly overdo overhead watering, for there is nothing the sweet pea vine likes better than a cool shower, particularly in the evening following a hot, dry day.

* * *

Screw up the nozzle on your hose to get a fine, misty spray and wet down the vines, and they will show their appreciation almost immediately. If your sweet peas are growing against a fence or wall, wet it down too, as well as any paths nearby; all this creates the moist atmosphere these plants love.

Even better than the hose, use your garden sprayer charged with clear water plus a little common household ammonia, about a teaspoonful per gallon. This has a wonderfully invigorating effect and acts as a mild insect deterrent.

Grown against a hot, sunny wall, sweet peas will often become infested with spider mites. These are tiny creatures, almost too small to be seen with the naked eye, but their sap-sucking activities can kill a plant just as surely as aphids or caterpillars.

The main symptom is a dried-out, papery look to the leaves, and a look through a magnifying glass at the underside of such a leaf will usually reveal a fine web, the unmistakable signature of the spider mite. When this is seen, you can be sure thousands of these little saboteurs are sucking away at the lifeblood of your plants, even though you may never see the actual mites.

Insecticides based on DDT are not very effective against this pest—in fact, they encourage it by killing off the mite's natural enemies. Black Leaf 40 is about as good as anything against these tiny sap-suckers. Add a little Liquid Blue Whale or Alginure Liquid Feed to the spray to make it stick, and direct it upward against the undersides of the leaves. The wall or fence should also be given a thorough wetting down with the poison.

ART BUCHWALD Has a Dream Interview

Why I Did It—By Christine

We had a dream interview with Miss Christine Keeler the other evening. Actually we planned to have a dream interview with Prime Minister Macmillan, but when Miss Keeler came into view we decided to talk to her instead. We could always speak to Mr. Macmillan in a dream at another time.

Miss Keeler was simply dressed in a smart grey suit and when we spoke to her she was just getting out of a Rolls-Royce.

"I say, Miss Keeler, I wonder if I could have a few words with you?"

"Please hurry," she replied, "I have to go to a ban-the-bomb meeting in a few minutes."

* * *

"Miss Keeler, rumor has it that you had indiscriminate affairs with several men, including John Profumo, former Secretary of State for War, and a Soviet naval attache."

"The rumors are outrageous. I've only known both men intimately."

"Is it true, Miss Keeler, that you used to go swimming in Lord Astor's pool at Cliveden with no clothes on?"

"Yes, I was trying to make the British women's Olympic team for 1964, and Lord Astor said I could practice in his pool."

"But while you were practising one night, is it not true that you met Mr. Profumo at the pool?"

"Yes, I did. Since he was a member of the cabinet, I was hoping he would use his influence to get me on the team."

* * *

"So your interest in Mr. Profumo had to do with your swimming career?"

"Exactly. Mr. Profumo was very impressed with my swimming and he felt if I practised very hard I would be able to go to Japan in 1964."

"Did you believe him?"

"I don't know, but when the scandal broke several people offered to send me to Japan in 1963. They must have had faith in my swimming to want to send me a year ahead of time."

"Miss Keeler, it has been reported you were a very good friend of Dr. Stephen Ward's. What exactly was your relationship with him?"

"He was my swimming coach. He felt I had talent and he offered to introduce me to other men who could help me make the team."

"Did he?"

"Yes. Through him I met several people of importance who felt that if anyone should make the Olympic team it was I."

* * *

"Did you help Dr. Ward find other girls to coach for the Olympic team?"

"Yes. He was interested in other swimmers, and every time he saw a girl that he thought could make the team he asked me to introduce her to him."

"Did they all express an interest in wanting to make the team?"

"Stephen was determined to make good swimmers out of all of them. Although some didn't qualify, he did get most of the girls in deep water before he was through."

"But now that there is a scandal, do you think you will still make the Olympic team?"

"I'm not sure. Lord Astor won't let me use his pool anymore, so I don't know where I'll practice. And the men that offered to help me make the team now claim they never heard of me.

"If nothing happens, I'll probably join the Aquacade. I've been offered £10,000 a week to swim across the pool twice nightly at the 1964 World's Fair in New York.

"The only trouble is this would make a professional of me and I'm not sure I'm ready for it yet."

JOHN CROSBY on Changing Mores

French Accept Divorce

PARIS — A French wedding invitation is a sight to see. In most countries the mother and father cordially invite you to the wedding of their daughter. Here everyone invites you.

The father invites you, the mother invites, the grandmother invites you. The great-grandmother invites you, if the bride has one. And the great-grandfather. And they add the decorations possessed by each member of the family.

* * *

A French wedding invitation goes like this: "Le comte Rene de Fusillade, chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur, Croix de Guerre 39-45, Grand Croix de l'Ordre Souverain de Malte."

"Le prince Pierre de Savarigny," (I'm making up these names and inviting you to a real aristocratic wingding) "commandeur de la Legion d'Honneur, et la princesse Savarigny have the honor of asking you to take part" (you don't just attend, you participate) "in the marriage of their grand-daughter and daughter, Mlle. Jeanne Savarigny."

* * *

But that's by no means all.

* * *

Some Don't Bother Even to Get Married

The bridegroom's father and his mother and his grandfather and grandmothers and great-grandmother (if he has one) with all their decorations invite you to take part in the ceremony, too. When you're invited to a French wedding, you're well invited.

But now the French wedding invitations have become even more complicated by that old Anglo-Saxon and relatively new French custom — divorce. Now in many cases, the mother of the bride has been divorced and remarried. Still, she gets on that wedding invitation, her new name underneath the father and his decorations.

* * *

Traditionally, the French stayed married. If they fall out of love with their wives, they had mistresses or lovers, but they stayed together. Nowadays, the avant garde, when they fall out of love, get a divorce.

In the French film world (admittedly not typical) they marry and divorce as lightly as in Hollywood, perhaps more so. The current mode, if Roger Vadim is to be followed, is to marry the girls younger and younger.

The champion in this field was Robert Hossein who married his last wife when she was 14. Her parents consented to the union only on the condition that she be permitted to finish school. She graduated just the other day.

* * *

The French divorce rate has leaped by about 10,000 more per year since 1953, though the French are still a long ways from us. But even more revealing than the statistics are the attitudes.

Today divorce is accepted, whereas once it was inconceivable. It could wreck not only the divorced woman's life but her children's.

I know a Frenchwoman who got a divorce to marry her lover. She was requested to take her children out of the private school they went to for fear of contaminating the other children. Yet the school had had no objections to the woman's living with her lover, which she was doing. But divorce!

* * *

The pattern is changing. Now you meet young girls of 19 who have already been married and divorced.

Some of the real jet set young French are taking the marriage vows so lightly as to dispense with the whole thing altogether. Roger Vadim just had a child by young Catherine Deneuve, who wouldn't marry him.

There was the case of a young couple who actually sent out an announcement of the birth of their bouncing baby son, though they weren't married. "Mr. Something and Miss Somebody Else announce the birth of their son."

The new customs are upsetting the makers of announcements no end.

Cleopatra's Fleet Nearly Rammed

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — After all the furore, Cleopatra is off and running and 20th Century-Fox officials are sitting back counting the money—hoping it will turn the profit mark of $12,000,000 and get the staggering studio back in the black.

Meanwhile, company technicians have settled down to recall some of the strange adventures that befell them in and around Rome.

What Hillyard Brown, the film's chief art director, believes must have been one of the strangest encounters in all naval history occurred when a U.S. navy aircraft carrier and two escorting destroyers hove over the horizon while the Battle of Actium was being re-enacted off the coast of southern Italy.

* * *

Brown supervised the building and sailing of the more than 200 ships employed and was aboard the magnificent 250-foot barge he built for Cleopatra to come visit Caesar in great style.

Because the crew, other than the galley slaves below deck, were all supposed to be beautiful maidens, "Admiral" Brown rigged himself up as a woman, wearing an Egyptian wig and a flowing feminine costume while he gave out directions over two short-wave radios.

Recalling the incident, Brown said it appeared the navy ships would cut right through the brawling Egyptian and Roman fleets. Another couple of million dollars swung in the suspense-ridden balance.

* * *

"I radioed the carrier its course but it maintained a panicky silence. It finally did change course, however, and cleared us, but there was a period of a few minutes when I thought we might be in for a real naval disaster.

"Funny what runs through your mind at a time like that." Brown chuckled. "I was thinking how surprised the sailors would be when they started picking up survivors and found all those pretty water-soaked girls — and me in my wig and gown!"

* * *

Dunce caps go today to all the big-time Hollywood prophets. They own a dismal record for short-sightedness.

In the hurry of the talkie change-over during the late 1930's, studio bosses laughed at the new "trinket" and pioneer Jesse L. Lasky stated flatly, "There'll always be a place for a good silent movie."

As late as 1940, Douglas Shearer (Norma's brother), heading MGM's department of electronics, told an interviewer, "Television is a dream still a good half-century away."

Back in 1935, when the first all-color feature was released, and the drums were beating for technicolor, the soothsayers declared the black-and-whites could never be outmoded.

We are reminded of all the wrong-guessing from men in high places by word from Universal this week that all of this studio's product for the next 10 months will be filmed in color—not a black and whiter among them.

Sparking a numerical title cycle perhaps, Ava Gardner moves from 55 Days at Peking to Seven Days in May, in which she'll star in Hollywood for her first professional appearance since 1957 when she made The Little Hut.

Ava will play the role of Eleanor Holbrook, a socialite involved in a torrid romance with a general, Burt Lancaster. And when Mr. Lancaster breaks off the affair, she becomes the prime interest of another officer, who will be Kirk Douglas.

Lancaster made his film debut with Ava in The Killers and in that film, too, the pair had a torrid and tragic romance. The cast for their reunion also includes Fredric March and Edmund O'Brien.

SHEILAH GRAHAM is on holiday.

Bride Carries Roses

A double ring ceremony recently united Fay Marilyn Lundblad and Mr. James Russell Gondfellow in Centennial United Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lundblad, and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon M. Gondfellow are parents of the groom. Rev. S. J. Parsons officiated and Mrs. M. Wilmhurst was organist.

The bride chose a full length gown of white satin, styled with lily-point sleeves and long sweeping train. A tiara of seed pearls and aurora borealis held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Robert Thompson, matron of honor and bridesmatrons Mrs. Ernie Kalyn and Mrs. Terry Knudsen were in Ballerina style dresses of white nylon over blue taffeta with matching pill box hats. They carried pink rosebuds and carnations. Raymond Lewis was best man and Mr. Donald Studds and Mr. Ernie Kalyn ushered guests.

Vases of pink and white roses decorated St. Alban's Hall for the reception. The main table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother. Mr. Howie Bowles proposed the toast to his niece.

Leaving on a honeymoon to White Rock the new Mrs. Goodfellow changed to a pink linen dress, toning accessories and beige coat. The newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

RCMP Constable and Bride To Make Home in Drumheller

A full hooped gown of white organza over taffeta was chosen by Elizabeth Ann Anderson for her recent marriage to Const. Dennis Alexander Bennett, RCMP. Mother of pearl sequins trimmed the scooped neckline and front of the bodice and skirt. A coronet of small leaves and flowers held her tiered shoulder length veil. She carried yellow roses, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Rev. George Harrington officiated in St. Saviour's Church at the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bennett.

The attendants were in identical gowns of yellow nylon over taffeta with full skirts and bolero jackets. They wore toning floral whimsies and carried colonial bouquets of white chrysanthemums. The flower girl was dressed in white organza and carried a small basket of yellow chrysanthemums. Their double strand pearl necklaces were the gift of the bride.

Const. D. Towing, Nanaimo, was best man and Const. W. Hunt and Const. F. Campbell were ushers.

Gary Howard's orchestra played for dancing at the reception. Mr. Arthur Edmonds proposed the toast to his niece.

Leaving on a honeymoon to the United States, the new Mrs. Bennett changed to a turquoise linen suit with white organza hat and accessories. Const. and Mrs. Bennett will make their home in Drumheller, Alta.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bennison, Courtenay; Mrs. J. Anderson, Vancouver; Mr. Alex Anderson, Vernon; Const. D. Towing, Nanaimo and Mr. N. O'Connor and Terry of Drumheller.

Grandmother's Ring For 'Something Old'

Pink carnations and white Esther Reid daisies decorated St. Matthias Church for the marriage of Leighton Kirby and Mr. Dannie William McQuitty. Rev. A. Cameron officiated for the daughter of Mrs. Lloys Kirby, Richmond Avenue and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. McQuitty, Clover Bar, Alta.

The bride chose a gown of white sheer nylon over taffeta and net, styled with floating panels extending down the back. A princess crown held her shoulder length veil and she carried a white Bible topped with pale pink roses. For something old she wore her grandmother's diamond ring. Her cultured pearls were the gift of the groom.

Miss Sali Price was the only attendant. She was dressed in a simply-styled gown of pale rose taffeta. Her net veil fell from a toning pill box and she carried a nosegay of roses and carnations. Her silver cross was the gift of the bride.

Mr. L. Smeltzer from Clover Bar was best man and Mr. Rick Kirby, the bride's brother, ushered.

The reception was held at the bride's home and carnations and phlox filled the rooms. A two-tiered wedding cake, made by Mrs. Kay Price, was cut. Mr. B. T. Kane proposed the toast.

Leaving on an up-Island honeymoon, the bride changed to a royal blue Italian knit suit with white accessories and cloche hat. The newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jas McCarvey, Courtenay; Mr. and Mrs. Hewkin, Ross, Kelly and Anne, Mr. Rick Kirby of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. W. McQuitty and Donna, Mr. W. Smeltzer of Clover Bar.

Raccoon Coats Due to Return

MONTREAL (CP)—Seymour Suchat, a Montreal fur designer, predicts raccoon coats will return to the campus in full force this year. The raccoon has taken 40 years to make a real comeback, he says, and this time it's "as much for fashion as for fun." The return was inevitable, he believes, because of the now popular long fur trend.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. A. T. Cowley and Mrs. J. B. B. Shaw are attending a reunion of the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Service at Christina Lake in the West Kootenays. The two sons and six daughters, all former Victorians, will spend two weeks at the resort.

ANN  LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I just read your column on young girls who are being turned into sex kittens by over-anxious mothers who want their daughters to be popular. You mentioned eye make-up, nylons and heels for skinny-legged 11-year-olds, basketball hairdo's on 13-year-olds and going steady at 14.

The over-anxious mothers are getting a great assist from the eager characters who try to separate the fool from his dollar. Listen to this ad which appeared in a newspaper in another city. A friend sent it with a one word note: "Sickening!"

"Teen accounts welcomed. Rings with diamonds for the girl you are going with. Beautiful twin hearts with a sparkling diamond. Only $11.95. Can be paid out at 50 cents a week. Open your teen account today."

In the same ad was a picture of the "Princess diamond ring—for your steady girl." This was priced at $39.50 and could be had for $1 a week. It boasted "15 brilliant diamonds." I would like your opinion of this. — PLENTY OLD-FASHIONED.

Dear Plenty: Your friend's one-word comment expresses my sentiments perfectly. But don't blame the manufacturer, the advertiser or the retailer. They don't create customers. They simply give the customers what they want.

Teen-agers who have been raised with decent values will laugh at such nonsense.

Dear Ann Landers: I address myself to the woman who calls herself a doctor's wife and signed her letter "Amazed At Your Ignorance."

I wish someone would remind these doctors' wives who are afraid their husbands might get a call at home that they chose the profession because they wanted to help people. The same goes for ministers. I am sick of hearing wives of doctors and clergymen complain because they are inconvenienced at odd hours.

We wonder why mental problems are on the increase? One reason may be that ministers and doctors are no longer available for consultation. They avoid you like the plague if they think you want to discuss a problem. People have no one to talk to anymore—and their troubles grow into illnesses.

Yes, I know there are psychiatrists and analysts but they have no place in the beginning—only after people are too sick to get help elsewhere. And not everyone can afford treatment.

So please tell these so-called "humanitarians" that service means putting the needs of others first. If they don't want to be bothered let them do something else and stop calling themselves doctors and ministers. — PITTSBURGH CITIZEN.

Dear Pittsburgh: It is grossly unfair to put all doctors and clergymen in the same barrel and tar them with the same brush. I know many doctors and clergymen who are dedicated to public service. I'm sorry you don't know them, too—your life would be incomparably richer if you did.

Change Of Color In Offing

HALIFAX (CP) — Nursing director Mrs. N. Leahy of the Halifax Children's Hospital says nursing authorities are "talking about" nurses wearing pink or blue uniforms rather than traditional white.

Mrs. Leahy said a change in uniform colors is being considered but nothing definite has yet been done. Manufacturers of uniforms had already sent samples of colored cloth and some nurses gowns had been dyed in an experiment to test children's reaction to them.

The nursing director said colored gingham dresses for nurses were tested for a month at the Winnipeg Children's Hospital and the children liked them so much they are to be tried in other wards.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FULLER—In loving memory of Geo. H. Fuller who passed away on July 10, 1946.
—Ever remembered by his family.

MANSON—In loving memory of my dear husband, Arthur Gordon (Art), who passed away so suddenly July 10, 1962.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
All beautiful memories he left behind.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his loving wife Betty.

WETHERELL—In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Ruth Wetherell, who passed away July 10, 1962.
You can only have one mother,
Patient, kind and true;
No other friend in all the world
Will be as true to you.
For all her loving kindness
She asked nothing in return,
If all the world deserts you,
To your mother you can turn.
So all I can do, dear mother,
Is to go and tend your grave,
And leave behind a token of love
To the best mother God ever gave.
—Ever remembered by George, Marian and children.

WETHERELL—In loving memory of my dear wife Ruth who passed away suddenly July 10, 1962.
I have lost my soul's companion,
A life linked with my own;
And day by day I miss her more
As I walk through life alone.
—Always remembered by her loving husband Herb.

WESTERN RED CEDAR

"BEVEL" SIDING

Nature has endowed the giant red cedar of British Columbia with every quality a homeowner could ask for in a versatile construction material with its "built-in" weather resistance, insulation value, working ease and, above all, inherent beauty.

Western Red Cedar is the traditional choice of architects everywhere, for every application. The attractive grain and warm colors of this fine wood blend beautifully with any home style, modern or traditional—in any setting, urban or rural.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

It's like an over-the-back-fence gabfest, except there is no fence and their neighbors are in Denver, London, Brussels and Berlin.

That's the attempted Town Meeting of the World, scheduled via Telstar on Channels 2 and 6 at 4:30 and again on tape at 7:30 on Channels 7 and 12.

Speakers will be former U.S. president Eisenhower; former British prime minister Anthony Eden; former West German foreign minister Heinrich von Brentano and Jean Monet, father of the Common Market.

Walter Cronkite acts as anchor man as they discuss world problems, and Telstar will switch back and forth among the speakers. It's the first time for an attempted simultaneous switching of transmission and reception between Europe and the U.S., and just another step in shrinking the world to backyard size.

"The birds don't go near it."

Wednesday's Highlights

4:30 p.m.—Town Meeting of the World—2, 6. Also on Channels 7 and 12 at 7:30 (See above).

10—CBC News Magazine presents Algeria: One Year Later—2, 6.

Wednesday's Movies

9:30 a.m.—Blondie Johnson (1933 police), Joan Blondell—4.

2—One More Tomorrow (1946 drama), Dennis Morgan—11.

3:30—White Sister (part 2 of 1933 drama), Helen Hayes—5.

★ 5:30—99 River Street (1953 mystery), John Payne—12.

6:30—The Rains Came (1939 drama), Tyrone Power—6.

10—Under the Pampas Moon (1935 drama), Warner Baxter—11.

★ 11:00—Fire Down Below (1957 drama), Rita Hayworth—12.

11:30—As Good as Married (1937 comedy), Walter Pidgeon—4.

11:30—Alexander's Ragtime Band (1938 musical), Tyrone Power—6.

★ Recommended.

"all wool and a yard wide"

A saying which has been used for very many years to indicate the genuine thing. Here again is the genuine thing — All-Wool Men's Suits. All-wool — no synthetic mixtures — just nature's best. But values that can be found as high as $75 elsewhere—here, they are and we are proud of them.

$49.50

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

When both sides are bidding to a high level and the hands are freakish, there is one easy rule to remember: When in doubt, bid one more. This policy may lead to a modest loss when no contract can be made by either side. But aggressive action can lead to a big profit, as North-South found on this deal.

West could not consider a forcing opening bid, especially as his suit was a minor. He had a bigger problem on the second round, when he had to choose between a take-out double, a cue-bid of two hearts, and a simple jump to three diamonds. Three diamonds was slightly better than the alternatives because he had no real desire for East to play the hand in a black suit; North's double indicated that a black suit contract would probably run into a bad trump break.

Vul: None

◇ 5 4 3
♣ Q 9

SOUTH
♠ --
♡ Q J 8 6 2
◇ 10 9 8 6
♣ 8 5 3 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	Dbl.
Pass	1 ♡	3 ◇	3 ♡
4 ◇	4 ♡	5 ◇	5 ♡
Dbl.	All Pass

Opening lead: Spade king

When the bidding reached five diamonds, North was tempted to double. It certainly looked as if five diamonds would be down one, but he chose to bid on, allowing for the possibility that either five diamonds or five hearts would prove makable. There was also the chance that East-West, pursuing the same policy, would go to six diamonds.

Five diamonds would have succeeded against the lead of the heart ace. At five hearts, the lead did not matter. South correctly judged, from West's strong bidding and East's double, that West was void of hearts. He therefore crossruffed immediately without drawing even one round of trumps. He surrendered the lead with a club of the tenth trick, and East had to ruff the eleventh, and lead into dummy's ace-ten of hearts to give declarer the contract.

Chinese Answer Russian Attack

TOKYO (UPI)—The Chinese Communist Party central committee today accused the Soviet Union of "jeopardizing" the ideological showdown talks in Moscow, Radio Peking reported.

The Red Chinese also charged anew that the Soviets were trying to poison relations between the two countries.

The attack came on the heels of a renewed proclamation by Communist China of its friendship for Albania, outcast of the Soviet-orientated European Communist bloc.

Monitoring stations in Tokyo reported both Moscow and Peking radios were broadcasting a steady stream of attacks and counter-attacks to the peoples of the two countries in apparent preparation for the break.

The Radio Peking broadcast, monitored in Tokyo today, said the latest Chinese statement was in response to a Soviet Communist Party statement published in the party newspaper Pravda yesterday accusing the Red Chinese of a "deliberate campaign . . . to aggravate seriously the Soviet-Chinese relations . . . "

The Soviet statement referred to a rally held in Peking last Sunday by 7,000 party cadres and government officials to welcome five Chinese who were kicked out of Russia.

Talks Recessed Under a Cloud

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet and Chinese delegations recessed their ideological peace talks Tuesday in the wake of a stinging Soviet rebuke to Red China.

They offered no explanation, but good sources said the suspension was only temporary and that there was no rupture.

The Chinese embassy, acknowledging that no talks were held Tuesday, said they would be resumed today.

ACCUSATION

The Soviet Communist party central committee, in a statement published by Pravda, accused the Chinese of deliberately aggravating Soviet Chinese relations.

It warned that the consequences could be dangerous. The government newspaper Izvestia also published the statement.

REPORTS LEAK OUT

The recess came just as the first reports began trickling out as to what had happened during the opening sessions.

One source said the Chinese had again proposed a world conference of Communist parties to settle the Moscow-Peking dispute, but advocated a new voting procedure which could swing the massive Chinese population into the scales and give China a dominating voice. The Soviet reaction could be surmised as totally negative.

ONE VOTE EACH

In past world conferences each of the 81 Communist parties has had one vote. Special weight was attached to the vote of the Soviet Union as the acknowledged leader of the Red bloc and all decisions came out unanimously for the Soviet Union.

In both party membership and population, Red China outranks the Soviet Union. There are 17,000,000 card-carrying Communists among China's 650,000,000 people; 10,000,000 among the Soviet Union's 220,000,000.

Chinese A-Bomb Delayed

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said Tuesday Communist China has run into technical roadblocks in its nuclear program and that it may be years before it can explode a test bomb.

* * *

The reports said its nuclear effort apparently was damaged seriously by the withdrawal of Soviet scientists, who also took back to Russia important scientific "ingredients."

The west had expected Red China to explode an atomic device sometime this year.

Second Route Talks Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Deschatelets said in the Commons Tuesday that his officials will meet in two or three weeks with officials of the British Columbia highways department to discuss a B.C. proposal for a second Trans-Canada Highway route.

Wholesalers' Windfalls

Tories Hit Gordon On Rebates

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons opposition Tuesday jumped with both feet into the tricky problem of sales tax refunds arising from Finance Minister Gordon's alteration of his June 13 budget.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said wholesalers will have collected "tremendous windfalls" of $350,000 a day since the budget if no provision is made for rebates to consumers. (See also Page 5.)

Revenue Minister Garland replied that he does not "for a moment" accept Mr. Diefenbaker's assertion.

UP TO CONSUMER

Under a shower of opposition questions, Mr. Garland and Mr. Gordon said, in effect, that it's up to the consumer to seek price adjustments from suppliers if they have been hit by the budget's 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

Progressive Conservative MPs seized on the situation created by Mr. Gordon's Monday night announcement that the tax, which went into effect June 14, is being reduced retroactively to four per cent, and will be raised in two stages to the full 11-per-cent rate by Jan. 1, 1965.

CAN CLAIM REFUNDS

The tax is levied at the manufacturer's, importer's or wholesaler's level. Mr. Gordon said Monday that where these people have paid the full 11-per-cent rate since the budget they can claim refunds for any tax over four per cent.

A rapid-fire series of Conservative questions hammered at one point: Will there be any refund for purchasers who have bought building materials or production machinery whose price included the 11-per-cent sales tax?

"There is no price control in this country," Mr. Gordon said in reply to one question by

REDS MARCH ON PALACE

LONDON (CP)—Police battled Communists and their sympathizers in the heart of London Tuesday night, turning back wave after wave of demonstrators trying to march on Buckingham Palace to protest the visit of King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece.

Earlier, there had been unprecedented boos for the British royal family welcoming the Greeks.

King Paul, 62, is a great-grandson of Victoria.

The Greek royal couple dined in splendor inside the palace as guests of Queen Elizabeth, protected from the bloody fighting in nearby streets and squares by the largest peace-time security force London has ever assembled.

JAILED SINCE WAR

Ban-the-bombers and anarchists joined the Communists in the demonstrations demanding "freedom for political prisoners in Greece," meaning Communists who have been in jail since the Greek Civil War.

Police fought the demonstrators in Trafalgar Square, Whitehall and stately Pall Mall from dusk to almost midnight. More than 80 demonstrators were arrested and an uncounted number of police and demonstrators hauled off to hospitals, some of them bleeding.

STREETS CLEARED

By midnight, however, the streets were cleared except for small groups of youngsters standing under the floodlights of Trafalgar Square.

Hundreds of policemen still sat ready in buses on roads leading to the palace, but as the royal guests left, only two demonstrators were outside the palace gates.

RUNNING FIGHTS

Running fights broke out in Trafalgar Square when a group of the Committee of 100, which includes anarchists, tried to march through Admiralty Arch onto The Mall that leads to Buckingham Palace.

Some of the black-sashed, banner-bearing demonstrators broke through the lines of police who were trying to funnel the marchers around the square and off in the direction of Piccadilly.

GATES CLOSED

Wild scenes of struggle among the hooting traffic and jeering spectators continued unchecked for 10 minutes, but police finally managed to check the demonstrators by clanging shut the arch's great iron gates, barring access to the Mall route to the palace.

The demonstrators then swung into Whitehall, the broad street lined by government office buildings, in an attempt to reach the palace through Horse Guards Arch. Mounted police were brought up and, with a half-dozen cordons thrown across Whitehall, threw the

Friendship Pledged By Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth told King Paul and Queen Frederika at a sumptuous state banquet Tuesday night that the friendship between Britain and Greece "forged in peace and sharpened in war" could "survive temporary disagreements and be enduring."

The Greek royal couple were the guests of honor at the banquet in the white and gold state ballroom of Buckingham Palace on the first evening of their state visit to Britain.

Public 'Sick Tired'

LONDON (Reuters)—Home Secretary Henry Brooke declared Tuesday night the British public is "sick and tired of the antics of Communists, the Committee of 100 and other extremists."

Brooke spoke as the Commons resumed reading to a bill to increase penalties for offences against the public order.

Four Died Last Fall

Ground Party Finds Shattered Aircraft

EDMONTON (CP)—A small aircraft that disappeared in the remote and rugged Nahanni Valley, 650 miles northwest of here, last September has been found. None of its four occupants survived.

Pilot of the Cessna 185 missing since Sept. 29 was Kenneth Stockall, 32, of Yellowknife. He was on a picture-taking flight in the mountainous area with passengers Henry H. Busse, 66, a Yellowknife photographer, Gunther Goertz and Victor Hudon, both former Saskatoon residents.

The plane disappeared after leaving Fort Simpson, N.W.T., on a proposed three-hour flight over the valley and back to Yellowknife. The weather was foggy at the time.

The wreckage was found by a crew of topographical surveyors, 145 miles west of Fort Simpson, N.W.T., and 45 miles from Cli Lake.

The initial RCMP report from the scene said there were no survivors. The department of transport sent two accident investigators into the area which can be reached only by helicopter.

Communications to Fort Smith, N.W.T. where police were co-ordinating details of the find were disrupted by noise Tuesday and additional details were not immediately available.

COULDN'T FIND PLANE

No trace of the float-equipped aircraft or its passengers was found in a 67-day search last fall and winter during which the RCAF and civilian aircraft flew more than 1,000 hours and covered 60,000 square miles.

The search was resumed briefly June 20, when an RCAF Albatross made a 15-hour reconnaisance of the valley, about 650 miles northwest of Edmonton, in the hope of sighting something which was not visible last winter.

CALLED OFF

The search was officially called off June 23.

Mr. Busse, internationally known for his photographic work in northern Canada, began taking pictures when he was 50. He was working as a pipefitter's helper at Port Radium, N.W.T., about 850 miles north of Edmonton when his employers bought some of his first pictures to use as wall murals.

He later moved to Yellowknife to take up commercial photography on the advice of a visiting Roman Catholic priest who frequently used Busse's Port Radium darkroom as a confessional.

UN to Investigate Poison Gas Claim

LONDON (AP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant has ordered an inquiry into claims that Egyptian bombers dropped poison gas on royalist tribesmen in Yemen's civil war.

Britain and the United States are reported launching independent investigations.

Thirty-five Canadian airmen have arrived in Yemen as part of a UN observation team.

Probes Mushroom Over Sex, Spies

LONDON (Reuters)—More investigations appear imminent into the prostitution, spy and homosexual scandals battering Britain's Conservative government.

Prime Minister Macmillan told the House of Commons Tuesday some charges about a "homosexual network of corruption" in the government made by neo-Nazi leader Colin Jordan were passed on to Lord Denning, the judge investigating the security aspects of the Profumo case. (See Page 7.)

Labor Opposition Leader Harold Wilson asked Macmillan to see him in the next two days to discuss some form of inquiry into the case of former diplomat Harold Philby, who fled to the Communist bloc after admitting being a Russian spy before 1946.

GOT DATA IN PRISON

National Socialist Chief Jordan said in a letter to the prime minister he obtained his information while in prison with John Vassall, a self-confessed homosexual jailed for spying for Russia.

Jordan said this information gave a shocking picture of "a still-operative homosexual network of corruption, involving members of Parliament, high civil servants and even intelligence officers themselves, which manifestly jeopardizes our national security."

Hungary: Troops To Go?

LONDON — Speculation is growing that the Soviet Union may soon withdraw its troops from Hungary.

The speculation is tied to three recent developments. The first was UN Secretary-General Thant's three-day official visit to Budapest last week in accordance with a UN decision that he should personally investigate conditions there.

Before leaving, the secretary-general said his talks with Premier Janos Kadar had been highly satisfactory.

* * *

On July 3 Soviet Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky arrived in Hungary. Budapest radio announced he would spend part of his annual holidays there.

Then, over the weekend, it was announced that Kadar would visit Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow later this summer.

Observers believe all these visits may indicate that Kadar and Khrushchev now feel the time has come to withdraw the Soviet troops, which helped put down the Hungarian rebellion in 1956.

To Keep Housekeeper — Target of Accusations

Bishop Defies Vatican

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishop of Aberdeen, Msgr. Francis Walsh, said Tuesday he will ignore a Vatican order to dismiss his housekeeper, divorced wife of a Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) minister.

* * *

The bishop, 62, said he had been given until today to get rid of Mrs. Ruby MacKenzie, 42.

Bishop Walsh appealed to the Vatican against what he considered the injustice of the order. He has had no reply.

The bishop did not disclose what department of the Vatican issued the order. In Rome it was reported that it could have come from any one of several Vatican offices and that the Vatican does not normally comment on such matters, considering them strictly private within the church.

In a letter to his diocesan clergy, which he has ordered read without comment at the principal masses Sunday, the bishop blames a jealous woman and five priests.

* * *

"The priests' meeting place is known to me," the bishop said. "It would seem that I am not sufficiently conservative. I am attacked through my housekeeper — filthy accusations in letters from the woman, then anonymous letters and persecution on the telephone with threats to get her, the housekeeper, out.

"Rumors and criticism spread through a certain circle and affected some of the teaching profession. In these ways my housekeeper was reduced to a state of terror, in which she is afraid to be left alone in the house."

* * *

The bishop said he had spent three months praying and pondering about the order to turn Mrs. MacKenzie out of his house.

Tourists Prepared for Worst

* * *

By JACK FRY

Rainy skies over southern Vancouver Island yesterday held down the wanderings of most tourists but they weren't as downcast as the sky was overcast.

Visitors spent more time in stores and dashing out of doors between showers for snapshots to take home with them.

Most of the tourists stopped on the streets near Inner Harbor yesterday by a Colonist reporter - photographer team were from Seattle where it was raining anyway.

* * *

One Seattle woman said that her parents had come up from southern California and that when the rain didn't let up in Seattle they decided to come on to Victoria.

Victoria residents feel they have had more than their share of rain for the summer, but cloudy skies apparently don't bother the tourists.

As tourist commissioner William Hawkins explained it yesterday, "they don't have sunshine in other places all the time and we can't get it here all the time."

* * *

The tourist industry here is loping along at its 1961 level, though somewhat behind the 1962 boom year brought about by the World's Fair in Seattle, he said.

The only person stopped by the Colonist team yesterday who didn't care for the rain was Mrs. Sarah Arenson, formerly of Jerusalem, Israel, which is known for its arid weather. "There's too much rain in B.C.," she said.

Her husband, Avie Arenson, formerly of Winnipeg, said he was last in British Columbia in 1958 when there was a severe drought here.

* * *

Lee Crawford, of Seattle, who has been here before, brought his young wife here for her first visit. They spent the day "walking in the rain and visiting shops."

A lot of tourists, however, were seen looking wistfully from the balconies of their motels and wandering about in sheltered areas, leaving Government Street to the braver persons during the heavier drizzles.

* * *

Goldstream Park was a little less than half-filled with campers and there was no sign of a mass exodus because of the showers. Most campers sat around comfortably under the shelter of canvas tarpaulins or polyethelene sheets.

* * *

Rain somewhat dampened the enthusiasm of Avie Arenson and his wife Sarah, who are touring the continent between engineering assignments in Toronto. But, couple made the most of their visit and got around to Thunderbird Park and other attractions.

Holding an umbrella over his wife while she snaps pictures in the rain at the Causeway yesterday is Lee Crawford of Seattle. Rain didn't bother this couple who spent the day in downtown shops.

Duncan Denies Dyking Caused Fall Flooding

DUNCAN—An indignant city council has denied allegations by three North Cowichan taxpayers that city dyking caused fall and winter flooding in the Alexander subdivision.

Council also:

- Heard a hint of a flood solution that may be proposed soon.
- Decided to suggest a discussion on parks with North Cowichan council.
- Delayed action on an increase in the business tax.
- Opened seven tenders for $198,000 worth of sewer extension debentures.

BACKED UP FLOW

The Alexander subdivision residents said stone and gravel excavated from the Cowichan river bed at its junction with Somenos Creek and pushed up on the river's bank, backed up the river's normal flow partly into the creek.

Council members replied the dyking was done about one-third of a mile upstream from the junction and only within city limits, to protect the city.

MAY CO-OPERATE

After most members criticized the letter, Mayor Jack Dobson hinted the Cowichan-Koksilah rivers flood control committee soon may suggest co-operation among Duncan, North Cowichan and the Indian department to solve the flood problem on a smaller basis. No details were given.

Aldermen agreed to meet Rotarians Monday to discuss a proposed Rotary gift to the city of a Cowichan River park.

PARK DISCUSSION

It was learned the city and North Cowichan parks committees will meet soon to discuss parks. This report came after Ald. Hamish Mutter said the city could pay more attention to other parks if North Cowichan helps with Pioneer Park.

Council voted to take the city solicitor to a meeting with the Cowichan Cricket Club, which wants to sell a 7.75-acre ballfield on Wahrncliff Road to the city as a park or playing field. The solicitor reported legal technicalities need to be clarified.

TAX ISSUE TABLED

A business tax boost to 6.3 per cent from 5.5 per cent was tabled after Ald. Mutter voiced a strong protest that "business is paying all it can stand . . . I can't see why business should be taxed any more."

Highest bid was accepted for the sewer extension debentures, 100.132 from McLeod, Young, Wain Ltd. There were seven tenders in all.

City officials reported welfare figures as $4,260 in June compared to $3,955 in the same month last year, and building permit values $4,150 in June and $176,291 so far this year compared to $25,280 and $141,600 a year ago.

Wakeathon Record 175 Hours

NANAIMO—The wakeathon that began July 1 when Gary Haraldson, 16, and Eddie Dumont, 16, decided to see how long they could stay awake ended Monday night when Gary went to bed after passing the 175-hour mark. The other youth fell asleep Sunday after 144 hours.

Port Alberni Backs Woods Access Plea

PORT ALBERNI—City council is aiming its guns at barriers denying public access to woods on weekends in this area.

Council decided to fire off letters to the departments of lands and forests, and of recreation and conservation in Victoria after hearing a plea from P. H. Welch for municipal support of local fish and game clubs in their 20-year struggle to obtain access privileges in MacMillan and Bloedel logging areas.

NOW IN DISUSE

In his letter Mr. Welch claimed many of the logging roads are now in disuse and logging is finished in some areas, but in many cases roads are blocked, bridges are destroyed or a locked gate prevents entrance to the region.

Speaking in support of the letter, Mr. Welch said he believed that according to the new access act the roads should be open on weekends except in cases of high fire hazard.

LOCKED IN

He criticized the company for closing the gates at 3 p.m. and told council he had allowed himself to be locked into one area recently as a protest against the practice.

While Mayor Loran Jordon declared that, while he did not consider the matter one for city council action, "I hate those gates, too."

NEW FIRE TRUCK

Council moved ahead on other fronts, too, and, as a result the city will have a new $17,200 LaFrance fire truck within two months.

Aldermen approved recommendation of Fire Chief W. P. Venables to purchase the equipment, lowest of three bids submitted, after receiving permission of the provincial municipal affairs minister to use money from the land sales trust account to replace the present fire truck — described succinctly by Mechanical Superintendent William Evans as "inadequate."

FISHING SAFE

Youngsters of this district will not lose their fishing privileges in Bainbridge Lake, now being added to the city's water system.

Council has approved recommendations which will give persons under 18 the right to fish in the lake provided they obtain free permits at city hall.

GATE SCHEDULED

A gate will be erected on the road to the lake, camping and swimming will be prohibited and use of motor-propelled boats will be banned. The permit system is to be instituted on a trial basis.

Two Trips Daily

Salt Spring Ferry Starts—at Last

The $2,000,000 B.C. government ferry Queen of the Islands sailed on its first scheduled Tsawwassen-Salt Spring run early Tuesday.

Ferry officials say the vessel will remain in scheduled service with two daily round trips and stops at Mayne and Galiano Islands. The Queen of the Islands was commissioned last week but was prevented from going into immediate service by a mechanical failure.

The vessel is capable of carrying 40 automobiles and is expected to stimulate tourist travel through the Gulf Islands.

Poles May Go

Alberni Would Ground High Wires

ALBERNI — Thumbs down on overhead wiring may become the policy of Alberni council.

Council has referred to the fire and light committee a request from B.C. Hydro for approval of a plan to build poles in one area of the city.

Ald. George Dunbar pointed out all wiring in the new subdivision is underground as he made the motion.

"A start must be made on the system of underground wiring for the entire city," Mayor Fred Bishop said. "Perhaps this would be a good time to start."

The mayor announced plans for the 50th anniversary pioneer day are progressing. He asked any person eligible to attend the reunion in Athletic Hall whose name had been omitted from the invitation list, to contact city hall staff immediately. Eligible are all those who lived in Alberni valley before Dec. 31, 1913.

Possibility of using the present city works yard as a site for a health unit building was discussed. Adjacent to Notre Dame Church, the land has been sought by the church for a parking area.

Ald. Dunbar suggested that, if the health centre is built on the property, arrangements may be made to provide parking for the church on the unused portion.

Pensioners to Ask Nanaimo To Aid Chronic Hospital Bid

NANAIMO — City council will be asked to support the bid of the Old Age Pensioners Organization to have the old hospital converted into a chronic hospital.

OAPA president Joseph Sutton told about 300 pensioners Tuesday that just before the $2,000,000 bylaw for the new Nanaimo General Hospital was placed before the ratepayers in 1958, the pensioners were assured in a letter from the hospital administrator that the old hospital would be converted to chronic use.

A senior hospital official has since said that the old hospital may not be converted as promised. He said the board has asked for a special committee from the provincial government to inspect the old building and decide how it could best be used.

The OAPA resolution also asks city council to approach the provincial government to have a chronic institution started as soon as possible.

Car Rolls Over Driver Unhurt

Leroy Charles Park, 21, of 12 Boyd Street, escaped injury Tuesday when his car left Sooke Road on Dewdney Flats, rolled over and struck a power pole.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by Langford Ambulance for a checkup. His car was extensively damaged.

Only One Trawler

Red Fleet Reports Said Exaggerated

Reports that a fleet of Russian trawlers are operating off the west coast of Vancouver Island are believed to be exaggerated, fisheries officials said in Vancouver Monday.

Ken Lucas, assistant area director of fisheries, said he has knowledge of only one trawler which was reported last week by several fishermen.

PATROL OUT

He said the fisheries patrol MS Laurier is cruising 20 to 40 miles west of Ucluelet and has been unable to trace down reports of any further Russian vessels offshore.

A naval spokesman at Victoria declined to confirm or deny that more than one Russian trawler had been sighted off the west coast.

QUITE LAWFUL

He said the Maritime Command was keeping watch, and that the presence of foreign fishing vessels was quite lawful so long as they remained outside the three-mile limit.

Earlier reports from Tofino fishermen indicated there were six Russian trawlers and a 3,000-ton mother ship active in that area.

Officials Draft Plan To End Roundabout

The city's official traffic committee hopes that it will soon have a workable plan for the elimination of the major traffic bottleneck at Fountain Circle.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said following a closed meeting of the committee yesterday that deliberations had reached the stage where "it appears that a major improvement can be made."

BLEND PROPOSALS

He said the committee was fully aware that "no solution would be perfect" for all needs. It has therefore decided to take the best features of two proposals by city hall traffic experts and weld them into a single plan.

Committee chairman Ald. Millard Mooney said the time had arrived "for positive action" on the part of city council.

WANT PROPERTY

He said a recommendation to council asks for acquisition of a strip of property on Hillside Avenue and for the immediate purchase of some $7,000 worth of traffic signals.

"We have a plan that is going to work — the engineers are just working on the final details now," the chairman said.

"We are asking council to have enough faith in us to order the traffic signals now so that there won't be a delay later."

Ald. Mooney predicted the roundabout would be replaced by a signalized intersection before the end of 1963.

"Six months ago I wouldn't have thought this would be possible so soon," he added.

COMPLEMENT PLAN

Both he and the mayor agreed that proposed removal of the roundabout would complement the city's current plan for extension of Rose Street in moving more traffic into the heart of the downtown area.

Rough estimates of the total cost of removing the roundabout and substituting a fully signalized intersection, according to latest reports, is about $45,000. About half this amount would be spent now if the additional property and signals were bought as the committee wishes.

There is some $28,000 in city coffers that was allocated several years ago for improvement of Fountain Circle and has never been spent.

10 Teams Compete In Shoot

Marksmen from 10 police shooting teams will compete in the annual revolver shoot sponsored by the Victoria City Police Revolver Club today and Thursday at the Thetis Lake range.

Competing in the event will be teams from Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, two teams from Vancouver, and an RCMP team. There will also be individual marksmen from Esquimalt, Port Alberni, Vancouver, Richland, Wash., and Ephrata, Wash.

Range officer will be Eugene Steele, chief of police of Friday Harbor, Wash.

Ferry Job Awarded

NANAIMO — Contract for the construction of a 110-foot steel car ferry for service between Nanaimo and Gabriola Island has been awarded to McKenzie Barge and Derrick Co. of Vancouver.

The company was low bidder at $179,877. Other bids submitted were $197,400 by Allied Shipbuilders, and $219,098.25 by Yarrows Ltd.

Chinese Answer Russian Attack

TOKYO (UPI)—The Chinese Communist Party central committee today accused the Soviet Union of "jeopardizing" the ideological showdown talks in Moscow, Radio Peking reported.

The Red Chinese also charged anew that the Soviets were trying to poison relations between the two countries.

The attack came on the heels of a renewed proclamation by Communist China of its friendship for Albania, outcast of the Soviet-orientated European Communist bloc.

Monitoring stations in Tokyo reported both Moscow and Peking radios were broadcasting a steady stream of attacks and counter-attacks to the peoples of the two countries in apparent preparation for the break.

The Radio Peking broadcast, monitored in Tokyo today, said the latest Chinese statement was in response to a Soviet Communist Party statement published in the party newspaper Pravda yesterday accusing the Red Chinese of a "deliberate campaign . . . to aggravate seriously the Soviet-Chinese relations . . ."

The Soviet statement referred to a rally held in Peking last Sunday by 7,000 party cadres and government officials to welcome five Chinese who were kicked out of Russia.

Talks Recessed Under a Cloud

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet and Chinese delegations recessed their ideological peace talks Tuesday in the wake of a stinging Soviet rebuke to Red China.

They offered no explanation, but good sources said the suspension was only temporary and that there was no rupture.

The Chinese embassy, acknowledging that no talks were held Tuesday, said they would be resumed today.

ACCUSATION

The Soviet Communist party central committee, in a statement published by Pravda, accused the Chinese of deliberately aggravating Soviet Chinese relations.

It warned that the consequences could be dangerous. The government newspaper Izvestia also published the statement.

REPORTS LEAK OUT

The recess came just as the first reports began trickling out as to what had happened during the opening sessions.

One source said the Chinese had again proposed a world conference of Communist parties to settle the Moscow-Peking dispute, but advocated a new voting procedure which could swing the massive Chinese population into the scales and give China a dominating voice. The Soviet reaction could be surmised as totally negative.

ONE VOTE EACH

In past world conferences each of the 81 Communist parties has had one vote. Special weight was attached to the vote of the Soviet Union as the acknowledged leader of the Red bloc and all decisions came out unanimously for the Soviet Union.

In both party membership and population, Red China outranks the Soviet Union. There are 17,000,000 card-carrying Communists among China's 650,000,000 people; 10,000,000 among the Soviet Union's 220,000,000.

Chinese A-Bomb Delayed

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources said Tuesday Communist China has run into technical roadblocks in its nuclear program and that it may be years before it can explode a test bomb.

* * *

The reports said its nuclear effort apparently was damaged seriously by the withdrawal of Soviet scientists, who also took back to Russia important scientific "ingredients."

The west had expected Red China to explode an atomic device sometime this year.

Second Route Talks Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Works Minister Benidickels said in the Commons Tuesday that his officials will meet in two or three weeks with officials of the British Columbia highways department to discuss a B.C. proposal for a second Trans-Canada Highway route.

Wholesalers' Windfalls

Tories Hit Gordon On Rebates

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons opposition Tuesday jumped with both feet into the tricky problem of sales tax refunds arising from Finance Minister Gordon's alteration of his June 13 budget.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said wholesalers will have collected "tremendous windfalls" of $350,000 a day since the budget if no provision is made for rebates to consumers. (See also Pages 5 and 7.)

Revenue Minister Garland replied that he does not "for a moment" accept Mr. Diefenbaker's assertion.

UP TO CONSUMER

Under a shower of opposition questions, Mr. Garland and Mr. Gordon said, in effect, that it's up to the consumer to seek price adjustments from suppliers if they have been hit by the budget's 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery.

Progressive Conservative MPs seized on the situation created by Mr. Gordon's Monday night announcement that the tax, which went into effect June 14, is being reduced retroactively to four per cent, and will be raised in two stages to the full 11-per-cent rate by Jan. 1, 1965.

CAN CLAIM REFUNDS

The tax is levied at the manufacturer's, importer's or wholesaler's level. Mr. Gordon said Monday that where these people have paid the full 11-per-cent rate since the budget they can claim refunds for any tax over four per cent.

A rapid-fire series of Conservative questions hammered at one point: Will there be any refund for purchasers who have bought building materials or production machinery whose price included the 11-per-cent sales tax?

"There is no price control in this country," Mr. Gordon said in reply to one question by

REDS BATTLE NEAR PALACE

Royalty's Gay Arrival . . .

King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece smile at greeters as they leave their plane at London's Gatwick airport Tuesday. Elaborate protective measures were taken as royal couple arrived for three-day visit.

LONDON (CP)—Police battled Communists and their sympathizers in the heart of London Tuesday night, turning back wave after wave of demonstrators trying to march on Buckingham Palace to protest the visit of King Paul and Queen Frederika of Greece.

Earlier, there had been unprecedented hugs for the British royal family welcoming the Greeks.

King Paul, 62, is a great-grandson of Victoria.

The Greek royal couple dined in splendor inside the palace as guests of Queen Elizabeth, protected from the bloody fighting in nearby streets and squares by the largest peace-time security force London has ever assembled.

JAILED SINCE WAR

Ban-the-bombers and anarchists joined the Communists in the demonstrations demanding "freedom for political prisoners in Greece," meaning Communists who have been in jail since the Greek Civil War.

Police fought the demonstrators in Trafalgar Square, Whitehall and stately Pall Mall from dusk to almost midnight. More than 80 demonstrators were arrested and an uncounted number of police and demonstrators hauled off to hospitals, some of them bleeding.

STREETS CLEARED

By midnight, however, the streets were cleared except for small groups of youngsters standing under the floodlights of Trafalgar Square.

Hundreds of policemen still sat ready in buses on roads leading to the palace, but as the royal guests left, only two demonstrators were outside the palace gates.

RUNNING FIGHTS

Running fights broke out in Trafalgar Square when a group of the Committee of 100, which includes anarchists, tried to march through Admiralty Arch onto The Mall that leads to Buckingham Palace.

Some of the black-sashed, banner-bearing demonstrators broke through the lines of police who were trying to funnel the marchers around the square and off in the direction of Piccadilly.

GATES CLOSED

Wild scenes of struggle among the hooting traffic and jeering spectators continued unchecked for 10 minutes, but police finally managed to check the demonstrators by clanging shut the arch's great iron gates, barring access to the Mall route to the palace.

The demonstrators then swung into Whitehall, the broad street lined by government office buildings, in an attempt to reach the palace through Horse Guards Arch. Mounted police were brought up and, with a half-dozen cordons thrown across Whitehall, threw the

Four Died Last Fall

Ground Party Finds Shattered Aircraft

EDMONTON (CP)—A small aircraft that disappeared in the remote and rugged Nahanni Valley, 650 miles northwest of here, last September has been found. None of its four occupants survived.

Pilot of the Cessna 185 missing since Sept. 29 was Kenneth Stockall, 32, of Yellowknife. He was on a picture-taking flight in the mountainous area with passengers Henry H. Busse, 65, a Yellowknife photographer, Gunther Goertz and Victor Hudon, both former Saskatoon residents.

The plane disappeared after leaving Fort Simpson, N.W.T., on a proposed three-hour flight over the valley and back to Yellowknife. The weather was foggy at the time.

The wreckage was found by a crew of topographical surveyors, 145 miles west of Fort Simpson, N.W.T., and 45 miles from Cli Lake.

The initial RCMP report from the scene said there were no survivors. The department of transport sent two accident investigators into the area which can be reached only by helicopter.

Communications to Fort Smith, N.W.T. where police were co-ordinating details of the find were disrupted by noise Tuesday and additional details were not immediately available.

COULDN'T FIND PLANE

No trace of the float-equipped aircraft or its passengers was found in a 67-day search last fall and winter during which the RCAF and civilian aircraft flew more than 1,600 hours and covered 60,000 square miles.

The search was resumed briefly June 20, when an RCAF Albatross made a 15-hour reconnaisance of the valley, about 650 miles northwest of Edmonton, in the hope of sighting something which was not visible last winter.

CALLED OFF

The search was officially called off June 23.

Mr. Busse, internationally known for his photographic work in northern Canada, began taking pictures when he was 50. He was working as a pipefitter's helper at Port Radium, N.W.T., about 150 miles north of Edmonton when his employers bought some of his first pictures to use as wall murals.

He later moved to Yellowknife to take up commercial photography on the advice of a visiting Roman Catholic priest who frequently used Busse's Port Radium darkroom as a confessional.

UN to Investigate Poison Gas Claim

LONDON (AP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant has ordered an inquiry into claims that Egyptian bombers dropped poison gas on royalist tribesmen in Yemen's civil war.

Britain and the United States are reported launching independent investigations.

Thirty-five Canadian airmen have arrived in Yemen as part of a UN observation team.

Probes Mushroom Over Sex, Spies

LONDON (Reuters)—More investigations appear imminent into the prostitution, spy and homosexual scandals battering Britain's Conservative government.

Prime Minister Macmillan told the House of Commons Tuesday some charges about a "homosexual network of corruption" in the government made by neo-Nazi leader Colin Jordan were passed on to Lord Denning, the judge investigating the security aspects of the Profumo case. (See Page 3.)

Labor Opposition Leader Harold Wilson asked Macmillan to see him in the next two days to discuss some form of inquiry into the case of former diplomat Harold Philby, who fled to the Communist bloc after admitting being a Russian spy before 1946.

GOT DATA IN PRISON

National Socialist Chief Jordan said in a letter to the prime minister he obtained his information while in prison with John Vassall, a self-confessed homosexual jailed for spying for Russia.

Jordan said this information gave a shocking picture of "a still-operative homosexual network of corruption, involving members of Parliament, high civil servants and even intelligence officers themselves, which manifestly jeopardizes our national security."

Hungary: Troops To Go?

LONDON — Speculation is growing that the Soviet Union may soon withdraw its troops from Hungary.

The speculation is tied to three recent developments. The first was UN Secretary-General Thant's three-day official visit to Budapest last week in accordance with a UN decision that he should personally investigate conditions there.

Before leaving, the secretary-general said his talks with Premier Janos Kadar had been highly satisfactory.

On July 3 Soviet Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky arrived in Hungary. Budapest radio announced he would spend part of his annual holidays there.

Then, over the weekend, it was announced that Kadar would visit Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow later this summer.

Observers believe all these visits may indicate that Kadar and Khrushchev now feel the time has come to withdraw the Soviet troops, which helped put down the Hungarian rebellion in 1956.

Friendship Pledged By Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth told King Paul and Queen Frederika at a sumptuous state banquet Tuesday night that the friendship between Britain and Greece "forged in peace and sharpened in war" could "survive temporary disagreements and be enduring."

The Greek royal couple were the guests of honor at the banquet in the white and gold state ballroom of Buckingham Palace on the first evening of their state visit to Britain.

To Keep Housekeeper — Target of Accusations

Bishop Defies Vatican

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—The Roman Catholic bishop of Aberdeen, Msgr. Francis Walsh, said Tuesday he will ignore a Vatican order to dismiss his housekeeper, divorced wife of a Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) minister.

The bishop, 62, said he had been given until today to get rid of Mrs. Ruby MacKenzie, 42.

Bishop Walsh appealed to the Vatican against what he considered the injustice of the order. He has had no reply.

The bishop did not disclose what department of the Vatican issued the order. In Rome it was reported that it could have come from any one of several Vatican offices and that the Vatican does not normally comment on such matters, considering them strictly private within the church.

In a letter to his diocesan clergy, which he has ordered read without comment at the principal masses Sunday, the bishop blames a jealous woman and five priests.

"The priests' meeting place is known to me," the bishop said. "It would seem that I am not sufficiently conservative. I am attacked through my housekeeper — filthy accusations in letters from the woman, then anonymous letters and persecution on the telephone with threats to get her, the housekeeper, out.

"Rumors and criticism spread through a certain circle and affected some of the teaching profession. In these ways my housekeeper was reduced to a state of terror, in which she is afraid to be left alone in the house."

The bishop said he had spent three months praying and pondering about the order to turn Mrs. MacKenzie out of his house.
